HUB HUBBY BIDS STAR "BON VOYAGE"
Though romance flickered it did not go entirely out of the marital life of June Day, dancer, and her young Boston bond-salesman husband, Kenneth B. Jopp, as was revealed for the first time when he appeared to wish her an affectionate "bon voyage" as she sailed for France on the S. S. Paris. She had sued him for divorce and Jopp had announced he was "through," friends taking him at his word until today.

MacMILLAN CHIPS REACH GREENLAND

Portland, Me., July 26 (A.P.).—The schooners Bowdoin and Sachem of the MacMillan-Field Museum expedition reached the southern coast of Greenland Friday "All well and happy," read a message from the expl rer received today by Daniel W. Hoegg of the Evening Express. The raddiogram was picked up by amateur station IZK at Wollaston, Mass.

LOVE PAIR, 14, PLANS YET TO WED; NEARLY STARVED IN FLEEING

Machias, Me., July 26.—Maine's "Babes in the Woods," David Coughlin and Nellie Piper, were found today as they emerged from a barn near the edge of the woods where they disappeared.

The fourteen-year-old "suicide elopers," whose flight into the woods had all Hancock and Washington counties engaged in a mad search, "received" their parents in the Washington County Jail and declared themselves as only too willing to return home.

Both David and Nellie, who are

PETITION FOR DEATH TRIO UP TO FULLER

Formal application for commutation of sentence of John J. Devereaux, Edward J. Heinlein and John J. Mcaughlin, condemned to die in the electric chair in two weeks, was filed at the office of Governor Fuller today.

The application was accompanied by a letter from Frank J. Manning, secretary of the Clemency Committee, who filed it. The text of the letter was not made public owing to the Governor's absence from the State House.

It was said the letter simply asked Governor Fuller to grant a hearing and inform counsel for the three youths of the date set. It is understood the petitions, said to contain thousands of names asking for clemency, will be filed later.

The youths are condemned to die for the so-called Waltham car-barn slaying.

Resolutions adopted by Brighton Council, K. of C., were also sent to the Governor. They besought him to commute the sentences, stating that Heinlein and McLaughlin admittedly did not slay James Perneau, aged watchman, during the holdup, and that Devereaux ,convicted of the actual shooting, is 30 per cent. mentally deficient.

The Governor was urged to commute the sentences to life imprisonment, "thus fully protecting society and satisfactorily meeting the ends of justice."

SON OF ABE LINCOLN DIES IN VERMONT BED

Manchester, Vt., July 26 (A.P.).—Robert Lincoln, only surviving son of President Abraham Lincoln, was found dead in bed at his Summer home here today. His death was discovered by servants.

According to custom, servants went to call him at 9 A. M. and discovered him dead. A physician said he had probably died some hours before.

He came to Hildene, the Summer place he had made his home for a quarter of a century, last May. Since, he had gone out only once daily for an automobile ride. He took his customary ride yesterday.

One of his two daughters, Mrs. Charles Isham of New York, was at her Summer home here. Two of his three grandchildren, Mary Beckwith and James Beckwith, the children of his other daughter, Mrs. P. E. Johnson of Washington, came to Hildene a few days ago. He is survived also by his widow and a third grandchild, Lincoln Isham of New York City.

Europe Is Beginning to Realize Price of World War

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO.
The Foremost Historian in Europe.
(Written Expressly for Universal Service.)

PARIS, July 26.—If Europe's political situation is improving, its economic situation is deteriorating. There is more judgment and wisdom in the old world, but there is less money, and more misery. It might be said that Europe is now beginning to be aware, after seven years of illusions and expedients, how much the World War has impoverished her.

England his succeeded in saving the pound sterling and to meet with good money the enormous burdens assumed during the war. But she is showing signs of weariness. Taxes are weighing her down, unemployment increases, the oldest and most flourishing industries are struggling hard to meet the competition, even in those markets in which since a century she was without rivals.

The great source of English prosperity and of her power the coal industry, menaces exhaustion. England is rich but in twelve years had quadrupled her expenses and taxes from $1,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 annually. Admitting that the value of gold has diminished by a quarter, the $4,000,000,000 that she pays today is equal to $3,000,000,000 anti-war. What country has shoulders so strong as not to bend under a weight of taxes tripled in twelve years?.

SUPPRESSED DEBTS.

At first sight one might say that Germany should find herself in better condition. She has returned to bullion like England, and has a budget more or less like that before the war.

Nevertheless she has arrived at this result by suppressing all war debts, and those anti-war, in short by destroying a part of her capital. Germany today resembles a giant weakened by a hemorrhage that has deprived him of half his blood. Unemployment is enormous like in England, bankruptcies multiply,

STEPFATHER SHOOTS WIDOW, KILLS SELF AS LOVE IS SPURNED

Unrequited love for his stepdaughter caused John B. Dority, 55, to fire a probably fatal bullet into the right lung of Mrs. Mildred S. Cripps today and then blow out his own brains at the doorway of the house both occupied at No. 9 Appian way, Allston.

For four years since the death of her husband, Mrs. Cripps has repulsed the unwelcome attentions of Dority, according to information gathered by police.

Dority's wife, mother of Mrs. Cripps, was in a room upstairs and heard the shots that ended her husband's life and may cause the death of her daughter. Mrs. Cripps, who is the mother of five children, was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

FIRES ON GRANDMOTHER.

Before turning the gun on himself, Dority fired a shot at Mrs. Sarah Seavey, grandmother of Mrs. Cripps, who ran to the door to give assistance to the wounded woman. The shot did not hit her, but lodged in the side of the house.

The mother of the young widow also ran to the scene and, although nearly overcome by the tragedy, be-

COAKLEY, IN $500,000 SUIT, DEFENDS SELF

Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston lawyer and colorful candidate for Mayor at the last election, again took the floor to defend himself in court when trial began before a jury in Superior Court of the $500,000 suit brought against him by Mrs. Od Pappathanos.

Coakley, the woman charges, acted as her attorney and settled a breach of promise suit for $150,000, but told her he settled for only $45,000, of which he gave her $5,000.

What. No Borrowing? A New Airship Yes. He Drinks. Why Not? Danger at Pearl Harbor

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company)

IN CONNECTION with rough treatment of American tourists by French crowds, bear in mind that American tourists are foolish. Many, as a joke, pasted French paper francs on the outside of their luggage with hotel labels. Or threw French money on the floor, to show how little they thought of it. The shrinkage of the franc being, financially, a matter of life or death with the French. They naturally resent the conduct of such idiots.

ON THE OTHER HAND, for your comfort, if you feel that this country ought to be more generous with France, bear in mind the statement of Mr. Mellon and the President that we are not trying to collect one dollar of the money lent to France before the armistice, while the war was on. All of that debt is wiped out. In the settlement proposed, but that is not told to the French people.

SOME EUROPEAN countries threaten to boycott American investors and borrow their money elsewhere. That would be a blessing to many Americans, silly enough to invest in foreign bonds that may or may not be paid.

But it won't happen. Borrowing from good old "Uncle Shylock," as Europe calls him, will continue as long as Uncle will lend. The wise American will invest in Americs.

A NEW FLYING machine promises to revolutionize flying. With the aid of Dr. Wagner, a German engineer, a counter-propeller for airships, similar to one successfully used on steamships, is so be tried by our navy.

It is certain that, with time, flying will change completely from present methods.

Today's airplane is merely an imitation of a flying bird. Man does not limit himself to imitating nature. He goes far beyond what nature can do.

The locomotive is not an imitation of a running antelope; the

MISS HAWLEY IN PSYCOPATHIC

Chicago, July 26 (A.P.)—Joyce Hawley, who came into public notice as "the bath tub girl" at Earl Carroll's party in New York, was in the Psycopathic Hospital today for observation, following treatment for illness from sleeping tablets she had swallowed in her room at a Loop hotel.

Dr. Carl A. Meyer, staff physician, asserted after a preliminary examination of the girl's mental processes that thorough tests were advisable.

Miss Hawley, who was discharged a week ago as a cabaret entertainer in Morton Grove, a suburb, and did took the tablets as a sedative after finding herself unable to sleep, and feeling despondent over remarks she said had been made to her on the street since the bath tub incident.

Dr. Meyer asked the girl a number of questions to determine her general knowledge. Joyce said she did not know who was Governor of Illinois or Mayor of Chicago, and added that she didn't care who held those positions.

"How should I know who the Mayor of Chicago is?" she asked the physician. "I am a New Yorker. Jimmy Walker is there and New York is the only town I care about."

Word from her out in the County Hospital, where she was at first taken,

DEMAND 'MA,' DEFEATED, QUIT

Ft. Worth, Tex., July 26 (U.N.S.).—Newspaper editors and civic leaders throughout Texas today rallied upon Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, who was overwhelmingly defeated in Saturday's Democratic primary by Dan Moody, youthful attorney-general, to resign immediately, as she agreed in a challenge to Moody at the beginnig of the campaign.

Mrs. Ferguson early in her campaign declared that if she was beaten by "just one vote" by Moody she would "step down and out" provided Moody would agree to resign if he beat her by 25,000 votes. Moody accepted.

Returns from 238 out of 252 counties, including 56 complete, gave Moody a majority of 1,145 votes. A majority obviates the necessity of a run-off primary.

The totals were: Moody, 341,691; Mrs. Ferguson, 231,060. Lynch Davidson, 101,926. Rev. O. F. Zeveley, 9,109. Mrs. Edith Williams, 3,648. Mrs. K. H. Johnston [illegible], 1,867.

BLAMES AGITATORS FOR RELIGIOUS TROUBLE

Mexico City, July 26 (A.P.).—The Department of the Interior today ordered an investigation into a pastoral letter issued yesterday under the signatures of the Most Reverend Mora y Del Rio, archbishop of Mexico, and seven other archbishops and bishops.

The letter announced that beginning August 1 no priests would officiate at religious ceremonies in the Catholic churches throughout Mexico—in view of the government's intention to put into effect the new regulations of religious institutions. The letter said efforts would be made to have the anti-religious provisions of the constitution amended.

SIGNERS FACE ARREST.

It is the intention of the Department of the Interior to determine whether the pastoral letter violates the constitution. If it is decided there has been a violation the Attorney-General will be notified, and he can cite the signers to the district court for examination or order their arrest if he concludes the facts justify such a step.

President Calles in a lengthy statement to the newspapers predicts the failure of the proposed economic boycott against Mexico by the National League for the Defense of Religious Freedom.

In order to form an opinion of the present religious situation, the President continued, it was necessary to remember that Archbishop Mora y Del Rio on three occasions had made public his intention of opposing the Mexican Constitution. The government could not overlook this because it would simply be weakness if the government were indifferent to what might be a dangerous disturbance of the public peace.

OBEDIENCE DEMANDED.

"What can the government of any country do?" he asked. "when a special group, religious or other wise, publicly rejects the fundamental laws, announces its intention to fight such laws, and incites the people to repudiate the Constitu-

ELOPING 'BABES IN WOODS,' CAPTURED, COLLAPSE IN JAIL

LOVE PAIR, 14, NEARLY STARVED

All Thought of Suicide Gone; Willing to Go Home, but Want to Wed

High School sophomores, and who vow they'll wed some day, indicated that romance on an empty stomach is a bit too hard on the digestion and is somewhat disillusioning.

"Even if I had David I couldn't think of pie without food for so many days again."

The five-day search for the youthful elopers who had threatened to take their own lives after seven days of happiness together, came to an abrupt end early today when High Sheriff James A. Cummings of Washington County, in his machine, came upon the boy and girl, walking arm in arm, along Atlantic Highway between Machias and East Machias, 50 far from the spot where they disappeared into the woods he Wednesday.

As the Sheriff, a veteran of the XD in Force, accosted them, David spoke up:

"Yes, we are the couple you are looking for. We were just going to give ourselves up. We're sick, tired and starving."

And then Nellie collapsed. David tried to rise his stricken sweetheart, but also fell and the sheriff leaped out of his machine and placed both in the car.

Then the sheriff, who had driven along Atlantic Highway when lights were reported seen in an old barn as a possible clew to the missing youngsters, hastily drove back to the jail, aroused the matron, summoned medical aid, and the two were cared.

A table was set up in the jail dining room and with the matron as cook, the youngsters put away four egg sandwiches each, five thick slices of bread and butter apiece, and three cups of coffee. Then they fell faster. Outside the jail a small crowd gathered, for rumor of the find had spread.

Incidentally, the elopers were found within a few hours of the time who ministers in 75 Washington county churches had offered up prayers for their safe return.

COUPLES OWN STORY.

Fed and warmed thoroughly, the two lovesick youngsters told a story of hardship in the woods that caused not only sympathy, but amazement among the listeners, who were amazed at the pluck of the two youngsters who faced starvation, even before relinquishing the "love's sweet young dream."

It was Nellie who did most of the talking, though David occasionally interrupted her. Nellie is a charming specimen of femininity, well developed for her age and with unusual intelligence. She looks to be eighteen. She wore a white middy blouse, blue skirt, black stockings and low black pumps. Her only undergarment was a bib one piece bathing suit. Her chestnut hair, boyishly bobbed, is parted over her left eye.

David had no hat, and wore khaki shirt and camp trousers, white tennis shoes and golf stockings. His hair is dark, he weighs 155 pounds, is five feet, eight inches tall and very good looking.

Mrs. Cripps, who is thirty-three, was threatened by her stepfather six months ago, according to Brighton police. At that time he was placed on probation after members of the family declared he carried a revolver.

With her five children, Mrs. Cripps lived downstairs in the house and was constantly forced to pass her jealous stepfather as she went to and from the place. As she neared the house today Dority was sitting on the doorstep.

FIRES WITHOUT WARNING.

According to others in the house, he had taken his place there just after she left the house a short time previously. When she was a few yards from the steps, steeling herself for the brief ordeal of passing Dority, he suddenly stood, whisked a revolver from his coat and fired the bullet that coursed downward through her neck and into her lung.

She reeled against the door. As the grandmother came through the hall to aid her the second bullet, splintered the glass and lodged in the wall. In another moment Dority had sent the third shot crashing through his brain.

Mrs. Cripps was carried by her grandmother into the bedroom when the five children were cowering in panic at the sound of shooting. As she was being moved to the hospital doctors said there was little chance of her recovery.

Cow Ate All Their Bread and Butter, Says Girl Eloper

A cow with uncowlike tendencies toward bread and butter as bovine nourishment was the indirect means of David Coughlin ad Nellie Piper, Maine's "sukcie elopers," ending their elopement in collapse and willingly.

By Nellie the story of the second flight of the youthful couple from Ellsworth into the Maine woods was related today and she revealed that from Friday until their capture they had been living in an old barn.

They took to the barn in weakness and desperation after discovering that a cow had eaten the bread and butter they had cached in the woods at the edge of a field.

"Thank God that I am alive," said Nellie. "We nearly starved to death. I never realized I could be so hungry. I was so weak when Sheriff Cummings stopped his machine that I had no feeling in any part of my body. Everything seemed to be leaving me.

GOING BACK HOME.

"I am going back home. I want you to know that I love David. I am going to continue to love him. I am going to return to my studies at Ellsworth High school. I know that I will come in for a lot of jeering at the high school from my classmates. I don't care.

"David and I had planned to go to Canada to get married and if it had not been for the government men who were stationed at the border and who wouldn't let us pass because we were too young, we'd have been married by now.

"But the same, we did get to the border Thursday. We tried to buy a tent in Calais but we couldn't get one. When we hiked over there in the afternoon we were stopped by officials.

"I will not run away from home again. Even if I had David I couldn't think of going without food for so many days again. Just think of it. After we left home all we had to eat was strawberries and blueberries we picked in the woods at East Machias.

"David certainly is a great fellow. All he thought of was me. Both of us were so hungry that on Saturday night about midnight we both became sick to our stomachs. It was then that David had great courage. He put both his arms around me in the barn where we were staying and said to me, 'Nellie, darling, I know that you are slowly starving to death. I am going to take a chance even if I am killed by the police who I know are looking for us. I am going to go to that section of the woods where we entered Thursday afternoon, and where I hid two loaves of bread, one pound of butter, a box of matches and two cans of fruit.'

"I turned to David and I put my hand on his forehead. He was sweating like sixty. He told me that he was ill and felt like fainting. I said: 'David, dear, never mind going out of the barn to find that food down in the woods.'

CACHED FOOD GONE.

"David insisted he was going. After waiting till daylight we both went down to the spot where we hid the food last week. I nearly dropped dead when I saw that the two loaves and the butter were gone. The box of matches and the cans of fruit were still there. After a little investigating we discovered that some cows had come up to the section, eaten the bread and butter. We went back to the barn and ate the fruit.

"We slept in the hay. Oh, another funny thing happened Saturday night. David and I came out of the barn shortly after it got dark. We did this every night, as we used to take a walk down the railroad track to get a little exercise and also to get some water to drink. We usually got water at one of the wells at some farmhouse. Sometimes we went to the spring in the woods by the railroad track.

"It was while we were walking along Atlantic Highway about half a mile from our barn that all of a sudden David grabbed my arm and said:

"'My God, Nellie, there is brother Jimmie coming up the road in his machine. He is after us. Let's hide in the woods right away.'

"David was so excited he pulled me into the bushes and we had no more than got there when Jimmie sped by in his machine. It was a lucky thing that David recognized the number on the registration plate of Jimmie's machine.

DECIDE TO GO HOME.

(Jimmie was James Coughlin, David's 24-year-old brother who captured the two youngsters when they eloped a short time before this latest "adventure in love.")

"We then went back to the barn and stayed there all day Sunday and the early part of Sunday evening. It was 11 o'clock because we heard the clock strike 11 bells.

"We then decided to go home. We did not have one cent of money with us. We had nothing to eat for five days hardly.

"We did not carry a revolver, but I did not have any poison with me. We wanted to get married above everything else. When we couldn't get married David said: 'If we have to starve to death we will die together.' I said: 'All right.'" the girl explained that she wanted "rest and quiet."

David listened to his sweetheart's story, occasionally putting in a word of corroboration.

"I've been a fool," she declared in reviewing the wine-bath party and its aftermath. "If I'd only known it, I was happy. There was a man I knew. I loved him and he wanted me to study.

LOSES SWEETHEART.

"I was tutoring to get ahead in the shoe business. He sailed for Rome a week after the wine-bath jury made me testify.

Then followed a broken contract in New York, refusal from other cities to book her act, and finally an effort to find work in her home town, Chicago. Her engagement at the Morton Grove roadhouse, terminated by request of the village authorities, had left her jobless and penniless, but undiscouraged, she declared.

"It's all for advertising," commented her father, Anthony Daugelas, a butcher, when he was informed of her plight. "She'd do anything for publicity—had a couple of automobile accidents to get herself in the papers."

Edie Greene
The Girl Who Never Had a Chance
—By Paul Whelton—

CHAPTER VII

Only an infinite line, a glistening spider-thread, is there dividing the cramped path of righteousness and virtue, straight-laid and far flung, and that broad highway whose careless curves and swingings are paved with song and laughter, with joy in full-living, with sighs and tears and sadness—all, as one, intermingled, fused, inseparable.

On the one, dull plodding feet trudge—unswerving, indomitable, placid—on, and ever on, into the golden perspective that shrinks and dwarfs and swallows in the welcoming of a Pilgrim who has lived—and only lived.

Ending the other in swift declivity, the smooth, slippery surface dips down deep into blackness, in swirling ebon murk, where the flaming primrose bathing the winding course melts in a lash's winking—while in the maw of the void, a crucible, glows only a molten mass that is the ash of vain regret.

These are the highways to eternity!

Highways—each man to choose his own; each woman hers! Or circumstance that does the choosing!

CHOICE OF CIRCUMSTANCE.

It was circumstance that choose for Edith Louise Greene, child of tragedy—Edith Louise Greene, State ward, "the girl who never had a chance."

The name of mother! Sought by a noble host; shunned by the lesser; feared by the girls who have erred along the way and who have loved without benefit of society's sanction.

Edith was to be a mother! With a fearful heart she told Jimmy Ford and they agreed that they must be married speedily.

Out at No. 39 Stanley street, Dorchester, where Edith was rooming, her kindly landlady, Mrs. Amy MacDonald, soothed the troubled girl and advised the union; and St. Peter's Church the young but understanding Father Mason made it the only way; throughout her circle of friends they told her to take the step.

At City Hall, Edith took out intentions to marry Jimmy—and then came denouement, bitterness and disaster, ay Jimmie Ford!

"She told me something that frightened me, and I told her that I guessed we had better not get married."

Denouement! Frenzy! The flood of tears from a full heart.

They talked it over more calmly, and it was decided that an operation would be the only way out of disgrace—the easiest way. And in the background waved a grimy hand, calloused and stained, long, bony fingers, clutching, reaching—and again clenching. The grimy hand of Fate.

In a Washington street apartment where the rumble of the elevated drowns out all sound, a party was in progress. Music swelled, tripped and tinkled — music of voices, laughter of women, sounds by rythmic instruments made of man. Gayety of the jazz age this side of Paradise.

Gayety—except in a room where Death hovered; where the groans of a tortured girl made different music; where life ebbed and the sands were running out; where a soul was fleeting and a woman, born of woman, was drifting toward eternity.

FOUND AT DAWN.

They found her as dawn crept up over the jagged line of the sleeping city. Cold, gaping, staring flesh, she lay with the spark extinguished, with limbs becoming rigid —Edith, the girl who had lived and loved and, living and loving, had lost.

The party ended!

Again panic and again frenzy. Words that stumbled one upon the other, shaking, meaningless—without decision, until the hours had ticked off, the sun was high and necessity for action had come.

Then gleaming, flashing knives in the deft hands of a master, the scrunching sound of a saw, cracks of paper, brittle and accusing.

Stuffing, forcing, squeezing—the slipping of knots in the bowline, savoring of the sea.

Steps on the stairs; whisperings; steady hum of a motor and the sound thuds of packages on the floor. A car slipped away in the night with only the stars above to see and the cars of the lovers to hear.

The broad highway with murk at the end.

Through the canyons of the city streets to the wider places, soft rubber rolled in stealthy tread—swift to the resting places of the dead.

Forest Hills where there is no forest; black skelton of the Elevated structure against the lighter shade of the sky. Winding, climbing, turning, dipping, a halt by the side of the road—and three grim, some parcels lay in the underbrush fringing a field of dead.

DAN'S DISCOVERY.

The broad light of the morning brought discovery for Edith Louise Greene, the girl who had sought escape from disgrace to win—who is the judge?

They buried her then as a Christian is buried—a pauper Christian whose worldly circumstances merits but a $15 grave.

In a dark cemetery corner, sunparched, swept by the hot winds of Summer, the fragments of a girl were placed in a surreptitious trench.

Daily the clods rumbled on the pine box below.

Through the scant trees the breeze sought a sombre benediction—and Edith Louise Greene was alone.

She never had a chance!

This is the final chapter in the life story of "The Girl Who Never Had a Chance," of the girl who lived and died for love. Only He above can be her judge, but so for you—perhaps some day you may have opportunity to help another "girl who never had a chance."

Lone Mariner Beats Gale in Small Schooner

HUB STAR IN WILL FIGHT

NAVIGATES CRAFT 14 MONTHS

Descendant of Drake Reaches New Bedford From Seattle, Wash.

New Bedford, July 26.—Just to look over the Charles W. Morgan, oldest of whaling ships, now a permanent memorial at Colonel E. H. R. Green's Round Hills estate, Captain Thomas Drake of Seattle, has voyaged fourteen months alone in his own little schooner Pilgrim from the Pacific Coast port.

Warding his own paraphrase of W. S. Gilbert's jingle: "For I am the cook and the captain bold and the mate of my Pilgrim ship; the boun tight and the midship mite and the crew of the little clip," this ancient mariner of modern times sailed into port here today from Onset, summer resort of Cape Cod, where he was something of a sensation.

There's no one else, not even a rat aboard the Pilgrim. Perhaps the spectre of Sir Francis Drake may have held the tiller while "Cap'n Tom" slept, for the present day Drake, British born, claims descent from that greatest of freebooters and voyagers, but save for ghosts, he's all the crew aboard.

WEATHERS 80-MILE GALE.

"Cap'n Tom" heard about Colonel Green acquiring the Morgan as a permanent memorial of whaling days and he decided he must come to render homage where homage is a seafaring man was due. So, thirteen months ago, he cleared from "Sky-attle" for the Atlantic seaboard. Despite his sixty odd years "Cap'n Tom" voyaged down the Pacific Coast half way to Cape Horn, then back to the Panama canal, and via the West Indies and Gulf Stream to Onset and thence to New Bedford.

Off Cape Hatter as "Cap'n Tom" weathered an eighty-mile gale without shipping a sea aboard his single mast craft, thirty-five feet over all, with eleven foot beam, carrying mainsail, foresail and two jibs and also a tiny five horsepower engine. "Cap'n Tom" constructed the Pilgrim all by himself.

SLEEPS WELL.

"It's an instinct," he says modestly, in telling how he never has failed to arrive at his selected destination. "I have a sextant and a quadrant, too, nowadays, and I've learned how to use 'em. I won't say they don't come in handy, but I don't need 'em."

"How I sleep; sleep good, too," said the captain. "I just keep out of the steamship lanes, and then there's nothing to worry about."

"Folks said I was crazy to go, but I just had the feeling come over me that it was time to go, so I went.

NEVER LONESOME.

Captain Drake claims that he is never lonesome at sea, though he has not even a cat to keep him company.

"Too much to do to get lonesome," is his exclamation. "When I ride up, I have to get breakfast a sail wash my dishes and shave from the decks. Then it's time to go dinner. I never miss a meal an I like to cook. And after dinner I sit down and read till it's bedtime."

TO CONTEST WILL

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Thomas, who divorced Edward R. Thomas, publisher, in 1924, will fight for a share of the $1,000,000 estate for her son, aged 11.

HIS WILL FOUGHT

Edward R. Thomas' first wife was Linda Lee. She divorced him in 1912. He remarried the same day she obtained her final papers.

EX-HUB ACTRESS THIRD WIFE

Lucy Cotton, well known in Boston, was married to Edward R. Thomas in October, 1924. She shared in the disposal of the estate under the will, which will be contested. Her mother also was remembered.

WIFE NO. 2

She obtained a separation a year before her divorce in 1924. She was Miss Elizabeth Findley.

POLICE PREVENT MAN'S SUICIDE

Springfield, July 26.—Lewis McGillvray, 31, lay under his bed in Mattoon street early today, with a rifle pointed at his head and his toe hooked in a loop at the end of a connecting cord, when police burst into the room.

A few seconds later and McGillvray's toe would have pulled the trigger-tied cord and McGillvray would have been dead, with his head riddled. He was taken into custody as a suspicious person and will be arraigned on a technical charge of assaulting his wife, after which he will be placed under observation.

When he had been taken to police headquarters his wife, Mrs. Annie McGillvray, from whom he is separated and who lives at No. 1323 Main street, was summoned.

She told the police that at every full moon, McGillvray's mentality breaks down and he commits insane acts. One of these, she said, was to brand her with a hot flatiron and beat her with a strap.

On another occasion, while they were living together, she said, he turned on all the gas jets in the house. She and her two children awoke barely in time to escape death.

WEST END GIRL HURT IN CAMBRIDGE STREET

Miss Carmella DePranco, 18, of No. 32 Hale street, West End, received injuries to her right thigh, when she was struck at Cambridge and Sudbury streets, West End, by an automobile driven by Donald J. Burke of No. 30 Milford street, South End.

Sues for Dog Bite

Worcester, July 26.—Clara Drouliet has filed a $2,000 suit against David L. Wall, claiming she was bitten by a dog in Wall's charge.

'FIRST LADY' POSES WITH HER NATTY PROTECTORS

MRS. COOLIDGE AT WHITE PINES

Standing just outside one of the tents at the U. S. Marines' camp, the President's wife talks with the "Devil Dog" officer and compliments him on the neatness and order which prevails throughout the company grounds. (I.N.S.)

AMERICAN SHIP FAST ON REEF

Tokyo, July 26 (A.P.).—Two large freighters, one of them an American boat, were in difficulties today in Japanese waters.

The steamer West Paralon of the United States shipping Board, en route from Yokohama to Kobe, struck a reef in the fog last night three miles off Oshima Island. Water entered the first hold. Distress calls were sent out and the Hinode Maru proceeded to the rescue.

The Hakuho Maru, owned by a Japanese firm, en route from Grace Harbor to Yokohama, grounded this morning near Chiba, on the Boso peninsula, due to fog.

The West Paralon is registered at 2,451 tons and the Hakuho Maru at 3,257.

Shanghai, July 26 (I.N.S.).—Four Japanese persons were killed and thirteen had scores injured at Wantung wharf today when the Japanese freighter, Taisho Maru, crashed into a rice vessle while trying to avoid a Woang Poo junk. Hundreds of persons were on the piers.

WHERRY TRIP TO HUB NEARS END

Boston's wherry voyagers, Dr. Thomas K. Richards and E. A. Wurtzler, who have been rowing up the coast from Norfolk, Va., today will negotiate the Raritan canal, a distance of eighteen miles. It may take them a day and a half to go through, as three locks present difficulties.

The start was made early today from near Philadelphia. The men expect to reach New York Thursday, and from there will ship their wherry to Boston and finish the trip by rail.

U. S. BANK FOR ERIN PLANNED

Dublin, July 26. (Universal)—It is authoritatively stated here that a large American banking corporation intends to open a branch in the Irish Free State if the report of the banking commission favors the plan.

The Minister of Finance hints that long term agricultural loans will be increased and that trade credits may be expected shortly.

Irish business men are delighted with the idea that Americans are rushing in, seven American business concerns having already opened branches here. The Canadian trade office also is handling a big rush for Irish contracts.

WIDOW UNVEILS PARKER TABLET

By Associated Press.

The birthplace of Horatio William Parker, late professor at Yale, at Auburndale was marked today with a tablet erected and dedicated by the American Institute of Normal Methods, a Summer school for public school music supervisors, in its thirty-sixth annual session. It is the tenth session since Mr. Parker delivered a series of lectures in 1916.

The tablet records his birth here on September 15, 1863, the son of Charles Edward and Isabella H. Parker, his death on December 18, 1919, and hails him as "scholar, teacher, composer, friend."

His widow, Mrs. Anna D. Parker of New York, unveiled the tablet and a tribute to the genius of the composer was paid by Professor W. H. Birge of Indiana University.

SPENT ALL IN KEEPING POVERTY AWAY

N. Y. Apartment Is Found Empty After Her Death; Made Good Her Word

Bath, Me., July 26.—Stacks of pawn tickets today tell the sorry tale of the effort made by Mrs. Clemence Dodge Morse to keep up a false appearance of wealth, before she collapsed under the strain and died of heart trouble.

A barren house in New York, for which she paid a rental of $10,800, was the ogre that ate into the little that was left of the once glorious fortune of $50,000,000 amassed by Charles W. Morse before he became tangled up in the meshes of the law.

Morse, it is said, is now little better than a simple-minded child. He babbles unintelligible phrases and doesn't appear to realize that his wife is dead.

REFUSED TO GIVE UP.

For him, Mrs. Morse refused to give up the sham appearance of wealth. To his sons by a first marriage Mrs. Morse indignantly said she would spend every penny rather than let the world know the tragedy of his fortune. She made good her word.

After Mrs. Morse died the three sons, who incidentally are co-defendants with their father in the last legal tangle with which he became enmeshed, went to the New York apartment.

The ones luxurious furnishings were gone. Jewelry, clothing and silver tableware was gone. Nothing remained but four bare walls to each room, with a few pieces of valueless furniture.

More than $200,000 in furnishings had disappeared. A library of 10,000 volumes was missing. One by one scattered pawn tickets told the story of what had happened.

DEATH EXPOSES SHAM.

True to her word, Mrs. Morse, rather than admit poverty or to save face by retrenchment, had gradually denuded the house of all its furnishings to keep up appearances to the outside world. Only one the more valuable pieces of furniture went into the hands of pawnbrokers.

Jewelry followed the furniture. Unselfishly she parted with a magnificent black pearl necklace valued at $50,000. Day by day the houses grew barer until finally there was nothing more to pawn. Only a few pieces of cheap jewelry remained. Then came the heart attack that killed Mrs. Morse and exposed the sham under which she and her husband had lived for six years.

WORCESTER BANDITS ROB WATCHMAN OF $7.50

Worcester, July 26.—One more hold-up was added today to the list of those perpetrated by young automobile thugs here recently, when Clarence S. Bowden of Holden, night watchman at the Union Leather dry, No. 34 Market street, was covered with revolvers by two men and robbed of $7.50 in the office of the laundry garages. Besides taking all the money he had in his pockets, the hold-up men took his chauffeur's license. The made a quick getaway in an automobile.

WORCESTER AUTOIST FOILS ARMED THUGS

Worcester, July 26.—Automobile robbers attempted to halt a car driven by Adolphus Chelsey of No. 21 Vale street, on the Grafton-Worcester road today, were forced to jump for their lives when Chelsey put on a burst of speed and drove through them.

Chelsey reported that a touring car without lights was thrown across his path just outside the city and that two armed men ordered him to stop as he approached.

FIND MANGLED BODY OF MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Worcester, July 26.—The mutilated body of Thomas White, 40, of Crompton street, was found early today on the railroad tracks near the Worcester Woolen Mills. Employes of the railroad, on their way to work, discovered part of the body on the embankment and other parts scattered within a short distance. Medical authorities said the man probably was killed three or four hours before.

TWO HELD ON COMPLAINT OF NO. WEYMOUTH GIRL

Eugene Vanelli of Albertina street, Quincy, was arraigned in Quincy district court today, charged with assault and battery on Alice Conwell of North Weymouth. She told the police the young man threw her from a moving automobile when she resisted his advances. James DeIlona, also of Quincy, alleged driver of the automobile, was arraigned, charged with refusing to stop and going away after an accident. The girl complained to Patrolman Panora of Weymouth, who captured the two men after a three-mile chase.

FERRERO ON EUROPE

the people and the middle classes are condemned to suffer trying privations and over the whole land hangs the weight of the huge mortgage of reparations that have to be paid. The Dawes plan has been only carried out in small part, the worst for the debtor has yet to come.

A part of French riches are being shipwrecked with the decline of value of the franc. Every week the fortunes of the creditors of the State, the fixed incomes and the stipends of the official diminish, like to an iceberg transported by currents into warm water, to the profit of a small number of Frenchmen and of a great horde of strangers. France is being literally exploited, like Germany was in 1921 and 1922, by the lands that have good money, who buy in France at low cost every thing they can buy. This year half the world is taking its holiday on the French mountains, and at her sea shores. Many French people delude themselves that they are doing good business thereby, but the country is despoiled by this excess of visible and invisible exportation, because she is selling to countries richer, a quantity of things for a value less than true. Will the country succeed in halting on this ruinous incline? It is to be hoped, otherwise France might behold days not too different from those that between 1922 and 1924 were sent by Germany. But for this an energetic action will be needful.

In Italy theorations with which the dominating party have tried to stupify the people and intoxicate them with rhetoric, no longer can maintain themselves in the face of reality. The attempts to stabilize the Lira with stock-exchange artifices could not succeed, as might have been foreseen. Money loses its value, industries begin to find themselves in serious difficulties, the cost of living increases every day, while the resources of the public fortunes and private vacillate.

Austria, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium, are writhing in the midst of trying difficulties of the same nature. Only the small States that did not go into the war—Switzerland, Holland, the Scandinavian lands—live in healthier conditions, although they too suffer by repercussion from the general malaise. In short, the years of the lean kine have come.

We must not be too astonished nor yet must we be too alarmed. This recividation was inevitable, and, indeed, one can but wonder that it had taken so long. It was proved salutary.

ALL WILL SUFFER.

It is beyond question that an economic crisis, so general and grave, as that which menaces Europe, will cause the whole world to suffer indirectly by sympathy. But the crisis will hasten the settlement of the world, liberating Europe from the insupportable charlatanism of the victors, which has more evil than even the war itself. With pretext of having won the war, there are no extravagances or absurdities that since seven years the States of the Entente have not permitted themselves, as thought, reason and good sense had abdicated their eternal rights in face of the victors of the World War. And it has not been possible to make the governments, or the organs of public opinion, nor high finance or bureaucracy give ear to reason.

A delirium of this nature has never yet been recorded by history and will remain memorable. States that have issued from the war with all their vigor, present signs of torture, mortgaged, have continued to spend, to make debts to increase their public expenditure just as if the war had fabulously enriched them. States, which when the war ended, had no longer finances, nor armies, dreamed of hegemonies or protectorates, of world empires. States that won the war by the superiority of their numbers, or their allies, imagined themselves to have become models and masters of all the arts for all the world.

MADMEN THE MASTERS.

Madmen seemed to have become the masters of states, and the wise were regarded as mad. This is the history of Europe since 1919 until a year ago. But these collective follies, when they are deaf to the voice of wisdom, can only be cured by the lessons of experience, and experience, as a teacher who sometimes teaches slowly but never fails, is drawing forth her lash to administer to old Europe a lesson that will remain memorable.

In the upheavals of an economic crisis Europe will recover some of that great wisdom that she possessed and practised in the XIX century. It is the fashion just now to decry this grand century, that dates from the battle of Waterloo to the battle of the Marne, from 1815 to 1924. And it is just in the intellectual circles, in which rages the madness of the present hour, that they boast of calling that century stupid..... But from 1815 to 1908 Europe, notwithstanding many inevitable errors, governed herself and that part of the world where she had influence with moderation, with enlightened wisdom, according to principles proved by long experience.

ERA OF EXTRAVAGANCES.

With 1909, just when the great enrichment of the world occurred, there was inaugurated an era of extravagances, which limit at first, broke all bounds when the World War occurred, and precipitated into the grossest follies the victorious states after 1919. Peoples and governments totally lost all sense of fine possible and the impossible, of the real and the fantastic. The most absurd chimeras passed as aphorisms of political genius. The grossest charlatanisms triumphed.

Now the confirmation of violated reality is approaching. The lesson is bitter but salutary. The lives of the peoples, like those of individuals, will permit of a certain quantity of errors, and even of inevitable follies, but a certain quantity, not more. And Europe, for twelve years has outpassed this highest limit beyond which the peoples must expiate their follies.

SECRETARY WILBUR submits to President Coolidge plans for a $3,000,000 aerial cruiser.

Gradually, perhaps, this country will acquire an air fleet. But what we need is airships, not experiments.

Plenty of ships as good as the one that took Commander Byrd to the North Pole can be bought for $20,000 each, or half that price in quantity production. Why not get 5,000 of them, to start with?

COLONEL NED M. GREEN, prohibition enforcement official on the Pacific Coast, does not believe in carrying things to extremes. According to Universal Service, professionally he believes in prohibition, personally he obeys the Bible, which tells us: "Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities."

COLONEL GREEN, admitting that he keeps things stronger than wine and gives them to his friends, says he drinks moderately. Nevertheless, he is suspended as Pacific Coast prohibition administrator. That seems hard. It is admitted that strict prohibition is intended for the lower classes. Those that lack "the price." Colonel Green does not belong to those lower classes. The next step might be to force total abstinence on Congressmen that voted for it.

AT LAKE DENMARK, a flash of lightning cost this country $100,000,000 and caused many deaths. President Coolidge and the Secretary of the Navy may be interested in a letter from Mr. M. E. F., of Milwaukee, who calls attention to the unprotected situation at our naval oil storage base at Pearl Harbor:

"Upon my last visit there I noticed that these tremendous oil tanks were entirely unprotected against lightning. A few weeks later, at the Monterey Presidio, lightning struck large oil reservoirs, and the result was extremely disastrous fire." Where gigantic losses and many lives are at stake, the government should consult scientists instead of trusting to luck.

RECENTLY, President Coolidge and Governor Al Smith of New York, who may run against each other in 1928 for the Presidency, went each to his church, one around the corner from the other, in the little town of Paul Smith's, in the Adirondacks. The President went to the First Presbyterian Church. The Governor and Mrs. Smith to St. Barnabas's Catholic Church. It is to be hoped that as the two churches, Protestant and Catholic, stand peacefully side by side, so politicians of all parties will peaceably refrain from dragging religion into politics, now or later, in this country where no religion is official and all are respected.

DAREDEVILS IN 50-FOOT CRASH

Chicago, July 26 (A.P.).—"Is Maude dead?"

"Is Frank all right?"

These were the faintly whispered words of husband and wife—the "Daredevil Cromwells"—in a brief moment of consciousness today after they had fallen fifty feet from a trapeze under the big canvas top of Ringling Brothers.

The spotlights had been fixed on them, the music was momentarily stilled, and thousands of eyes were focused for the climatic thrill of the show—the flying trapeze act.

Frank and Maude were seated on the swing preparing for a series of aerial feats when the iron hook by which their trapeze was suspended snapped. Mrs. Cromwell plunged downward. Her husband instinctively caught at a rope and reached his other hand to her. Their fingers touched for an instant and then they fell, together, to the ground. Both were dangerously injured.

They had been together in the circus for more than twenty years.

'POORHOUSE'S' DOOM SOUNDS

Des Moines, Ia., July 26 (A.P.).—An organized effort to abolish the "poorhouse" as an American institution will be launched as the result of an investigation financed by a dozen fraternal organizations and the Department of Labor.

Harry C. Evans of Des Moines, special commissioner of Secretary of Labor Davis, in a report on a two years' nation-wide survey of almshouses, recommends abolition of the county poorhouse system and continuance of its essential functions in a central home for aged and friendless in each Commonwealth.

The present system, under which each county maintains an institution, is described as "the most mismanaged public business in the world," and "the symbol of humanity's degradations."

The central home plan will be submitted to the annual convention of fraternal congresses at Buffalo, N. Y., August 16.

PROBE AUTO BLOCKADE IN $50,000 MEDFORD FIRE

Placing the blame for most of the $50,000 loss at the Norton Junk yards fire on Locust street, Medford, on thousands of autoists whose machines blocked the approaches to the scene, Fire Chief Burton Harvey of Medford today demanded an investigation to determine responsibility for the jam.

James Lambert, hoseman attached to Engine 3 was injured by being struck on the head by a falling beam. He was taken to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Two buildings, each 120 feet long were burned. The origin of the fire is believed to have been spontaneous combustion.

PROBE COLLAPSE OF BRIDGE THAT KILLED 6

Charleston, W. Va., July 24 (A.P.).—The death toll in the collapse into Coal River of a footbridge at Whitesville 40 miles from here, remained at six today, but officials said further search of the river bed might reveal additional victims.

An investigation ordered by Governor Howard M. Gore indicated a turnbuckle had given way before the combined weight of the more than a hundred persons packed on the bridge to witness a water carnival.

Officials estimate the injured at more than 65, five being in serious condition.

DEATH OF BACK BAY WOMAN NATURAL

Dispelling the mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Loretta Jacobs, whose body was found in an apartment at No. 76 Pemberton street, Back Bay, Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath announced today there was nothing to indicate murder or death by violence."

William P. Welch, who admitted living at the apartment with the woman, is still held as a suspicious person. He disappeared the day after having been absent from the house for several hours.

British May Soon Sing 'Yes, We Have No Bahamas!'

London, July 26 (A.P.).—"What would Uncle Sam offer for that eligible group of islands," asked the Illustrated Sunday Herald, commenting good naturedly on America's "recent almost feverish interest in the Bahama Islands," in connection with the mission to London of Brigadier-General Lincoln G. Andrews, the American prohibition enforcement chief.

"We have a vision," says the newspaper, "of a happy world in which America has the rum-runners by the heels and Great Britain, after recording the transaction on the cash register, is cheerfully singing, 'Yes, We Have No Bahamas!'"

LEROY JEFFERS DIES IN CRASH

Leroy Jeffers, forty-seven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Jeffers of No. 169 Humphrey street, Swampscott, author, newspaperman, lecturer and explorer, was killed yesterday in an airplane crash at Wawona, Cal., it was learned today.

Jeffers, whose father, a Swampscott druggist, awaited the son's return at a California hotel, made the flight in connection with obtaining data for a book he was writing. Dr. Sterling Bunnell of San Francisco, pilot of the plane, sustained a fractured hip.

The author, who was born in Ipswich and graduated from Swampscott High School, is survived by his parents and his wife, Mrs. Rose Miller Jeffers of No. 6 Central Park West, New York City.

MEXICO PROBES PASTORAL LETTER

Calles Declares Government Is Not Persecuting, but Law Must Be Obeyed

tion? My government can only demand strict obedience of the Constitution.

"We have had no need to pass new laws, but merely to enforce already existing legislation, the reform laws of more than 50 years ago, and the 1917 Constitution—only issuing regulations establishing penalties.

"Such establishment of penalties is logically necessary; otherwise enforcement of the constitutional religious clauses, which the clergy itself admits it has been violating, would be impossible.

"We have prescribed penalties in accordance with the authority invested in us by Congress. The penalties are not excessive and are no different from those fixed for violation of the Constitution in all civilized countries.

NO IDEA OF PERSECUTION.

"The government has clearly stated that our conduct, whatever our philosophic or religious ideas, is not actuated by impulse, persecution, rancor or ill-will against the archbishops and bishops, who, in 1917, signed the repudiation of the Constitution and appeal to rebellion which their declaration really was.

"The best proof of the truth of this attitude is the fact that the government has enforced the Constitution, although it well knew that one of the first results would be favorable to the Mexican clergy, through automatic elimination of foreign priests who did not sign the protest and who in some cases were even an obstacle to the politics of the bad Mexican clergy who were the enemies of the government; but these foreign priests had to abandon the country because the Constitution so demanded.

"However, frankly, I believe that rather than the clergy, the persons most obstructing the government's administrative task are those of the old reactionary tendencies, having hatred of the revolutions and the revolutionary government, who disguise themselves with the religious cloak and agitate in the name of religion.

LAWYERS AGITATING

The President stated that, among the groups violating the government's program, may be found attorneys, who, through a strong showing of religious zeal, expect to profit professionally as managers or advisers of the clergy's property.

Another group of movers in the religious conflicts, he declared, was composed of professional political agitators, who organized a political party, posing as friends of Francisco Madero, but on the day after Madero's assassination, he alleged these persons allied themselves with General Victoriano Huerta, Madero's enemy.

"I know," he continued, "that it is very hard for the people of the United States to understand that there are wicked elements who attempt to cover their political ambitions under the cloak of religion."

It is announced that a committee of eight members of congregations will be appointed by the priest of each Catholic church to assume charge when the priests retire from the churches under the instructions contained in the pastoral letter. The churches will remain open for worship, but no priests will function.

The Catholics, despite the fact the order ceasing church ceremonials was expected, seem stunned now that they are confronted by the actual fact, and there is much speculation whether it will be possible for laymen to administer the sacrament of extreme unction, or to perform marriages, while the priests are not functioning.

Mexican Labor Unions Support President

Mexico City, July 26 (A.P.)—The labor unions of the Federal district have appointed a committee to notify President Calles that the Laborites are backing him in his policy of putting the religious laws into effect.

Another Catholic Leader Put in Jail

Mexico City, July 26 (A.P.)—Another Catholic leader, Eugenio Ocear, president of the Association for Nocturnal Adoration, has been placed in jail. He is charged with supporting the economic boycott of the National League for the Defense of Religious Freedom.

The priests who were released under bail of 5,000 pesos each Senor Carzazo, Senor Ceniceros Villareal, and Senor Bustos, directors of the League who were charged with having signed the league's boycott manifesto.

ATTACK ON TWO BOYS PROBED

The story of two Boston boys that they were attacked by a band headed by John J. DeRocco, of the Revere force, is being thoroughly investigated by Revere police officials.

The boys, Frank and Dominic Sarno, aged 15 respectively, of No. 16 Hull street, claim that as they were passing along Malden street, Revere, DeRocco, in a car, suddenly struck Frank on the back with his night stick and slapped him in the face. They claim when they ran for their father the policeman fired one shot at them.

FORM PAN-ASIATIC ALLIANCE IN JAPAN

Rome, July 26 (I.N.S.)—Organization of a Pan-Asiatic alliance is "in contemplation, according to reports reaching here from Egypt. The Egyptian press declares that a conference of Asiatic states has been summoned to meet in Nagasaki, Japan, in August to perfect the proposed alliance.

Delegates will be present from Japan, China, India, Persia and the Philippines, it is reported.

NEW JERSEY GOVERNOR PUSHES PROBE OF NEW CHARGES IN HALL-MILLS DEATHS

HALL'S WIDOW
Mrs. Edward W. Hall was at the scene of the crime the night it was committed, according to the new charges.

FOUND SLAIN
The Rev. Dr. Hall was found shot to death under a crabapple tree on the outskirts of New Brunswick, N. J.

SLAIN WITH HIM
Mrs. Eleanor Mills, wife of the sexton, was found at the pastor's side. She was in the church choir.

HER DAUGHTER
Charlotte Mills, daughter of the slain woman, is one of the principals in the mystery, unsolved after three years.

HER HUSBAND
James Mills, sexton. On his right is Mrs. Arthur Riehl, Hall's maid, who denies Reil's claim that she knows the inside story.

WOMAN WITH ORMISTON

Carmel, Cal., July 26 (Universal).—Startling developments marked the reopening of the Aimee Semple McPherson "kidnaping" case here today.

The scene of investigation activities shifted from Arizona and the Mexican border to this city when Deputy District Attorney Joseph Ryan, announced that two women, real estate office employes, had positively identified a photograph of Kenneth G. Ormiston as a man who occupied a beach cottage with an unidentified woman during the first ten days following Mrs. McPherson's disappearance.

On May 14, four days before Mrs. McPherson's sensational disappearance, a man positively identified as Ormiston by Mrs. Daisy Bostick and Miss Viola Coser, employes of the Carmel Realty Company rented from them a beach cottage. He paid three months rent in advance. This amounted to $450.

On the morning of May 19—sixteen hours after Mrs. McPherson's disappearance was reported at Venice, Ormiston and a woman wearing goggles in an automobile. Ormiston and his woman companion remained for ten days when they departed. When Mrs. Bostick called at the cottage she found it empty. A note was left under the door.

30 DIE, 2 HELD IN RUM DEATHS

Buffalo, N. Y., July 26 (A.P.)—Twenty "soft drink" stands were closed today as result of many deaths here, in Lockport, and in Canadian towns just across the border of persons who drank liquor that contained wood alcohol.

Two dealers have been arrested, one on a homicide charge, and police sought James Volker as the distributor of the liquor. Acting Chief of Police John S. Marmon said he would confer with District Attorney Guy B. Moore this morning and ask at least five indictments for murder.

The death lists last night of Christopher E. Lombard, hotel man of Wright's Corners, brought the total in Buffalo to thirteen, while an equal number died in Toronto and other Canadian towns, and four died in Lockport.

Carl Malachosa, "soft drink" dealer, was arrested last night on an open charge after police were informed he had sold liquor to Nellie McCarthy and Charles Lennon, who died after a party at Miss McCarthy's apartment. Two others who attended the party were taken to a hospital, dangerously ill. Joseph Banos, alleged middleman for Volker, was held on a homicide charge. Banos said he returned 240 gallons liquor to Volker when he found it was not fit to drink.

GRILLS WOMAN IN GIRL 'MILL'

Providence, R. I., July 26.—An unnamed woman was partly identified here today as the alleged operator of an illegal surgery "mill" where Emelda Bourque, petite 17-year-old weaver, died.

Police raided the alleged "Mill" on Willett avenue, East Providence, after it was pointed out to them by Mrs. Anna Bourque of Moosup, Conn., the girl's mother, who identified it as the scene of the fatal operation. The woman they sought was not in, they were informed.

Situated in the ultra-exclusive residential section of the city, the alleged "illegal surgery mill" is a two story, white-painted structure, surrounded by an acre of well trimmed shrubbery and hidden by a thicket of trees.

More than a dozen rooms, each containing beds, interested the officials who examined the interior of the house. No surgical instruments were found, they said.

As a result of today's developments, police have intensified their search for the woman "doctor" who, it is alleged, performed the actual operations upon girls at the "mill." A "Jane Doe" warrant has been issued for her.

BON VOYAGE, SAYS 'RUDY' TO BROTHER AND WIFE

R. R. PROBERS COMING TO HUB

Washington, July 26 (I.N.S.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission tomorrow begins its investigations into America's new giant transportation service, the motor bus and truck.

Hearings are to be held in various sections of the country, beginning tomorrow, in Chicago and continuing later in Boston, New York and other cities. They will be under the direction of Commissioner Eech, co-author of the Esch-Cummins Transportation Act.

The results of the investigation will be used to prepare recommendations to Congress for control of motor transportation, now competing in a large way with steam and electric lines. Many street car companies have been hard hit by the motor busses.

All railroads of the country were made a part to the investigation.

DEMPSEY'S WIFE TO ACT OPPOSITE "RUDY"

Los Angeles, July 26 (A.P.)—Mrs. Jack Dempsey, known in the movies as Estelle Taylor, has signed a long contract with Feature Productions, Inc., an organization which employs Rudolph Valentino.

This announcement was made today by John W. Considine, Jr., head of the organization. Mr. Considine intimated that Dempsey's wife probably would be assigned to play a leading role opposite Valentino upon his return from the East.

SEEK GIRL JAIL PLOT LEADER

Detroit, July 26 (I.N.S.).—A 20 year-old girl, driver of a $6,000 sport car is sought today as the instigator and leader of a thwarted plot to liberate 14 county jail prisoners early today.

According to Sheriff George Waters, this girl, the wife of one of the 14 prisoners, was seen cruising around the jail early this morning followed by another machine operated by a boy.

The plot was uncovered when a turnkey discovered two bars had been sawed from the cell block proper and two other bars in a window had also been removed.

George Brady, held on a Federal automobile theft charge, admitted several saws had been smuggled to him in loaves of bread, according to Sheriff Walters. The prisoners were to have gained the street by lowering themselves with blankets, he said. They were to meet the two automobiles and transfer to speed boats across the river to Canada.

THUGS BEAT WRONG MAN; SECURE $11

Knocked unconscious by thugs who apparently mistook him for the proprietor of a nearby grocery store, George Fisher, 19, of No. 642 Commercial street, East Weymouth was found by passing autoists on 603 Colony Hill, Weymouth, his pockets turned inside out and $11 gone.

Young Fisher was taken home by the police, but after a physician discovered his skull fractured, he was removed to the Weymouth Hospital, where he is in a serious condition.

N. E. TO STUDY THE WEST

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26 (A.P.).—"One of the main purposes of the visit of the New England governors to the conference at Cheyenne is to learn first hand about Western people and their problems and to extend the greeting of New England to the descendants of the New England pioneers who settled and built up the frontier west," declared Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, chairman of the conference executive committee, today.

Governor Brewster, with Governor J. T. Trumbull of Connecticut, Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire and Governor Franklin S. Billings of Vermont, and Washington Wells, president of the Massachusetts State Senate, and John A. Bennett, executive secretary of Governor Pothier of Rhode Island arrived here at midnight on a special car. Members of the official and personal families of the governors, totaling 17 persons, accompanied the New England State Executives.

In Maine's representation were Governor and Mrs. Brewster, Colonel Harold N. Marsh, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hinckley of Portland, Me. From New Hampshire were Governor and Mrs. Winant, who are to be the guests of Governor Nellie Taylor Ross, Wyoming's woman executive, and Major George N. Morrill, aide. Governor and Mrs. Trumbull and their daughters, Florence and Jean, and a niece, Miss Dorothy Clark, formed the Connecticut party. V. G. Bruce Wetmore of Boston represented Massachusetts, together with Mr. Wells. T. F. Joyce of Boston is secretary of the party.

The delegates will spend three days in delving into State government problems, stressing administration of finances and State's rights. The study of finances is to open today as soon as the routine conference organization is effected.

Gov. Pinchot on Law Enforcement

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26 (A.P.).—The United States is faced with three outstanding problems, law enforcement, conservation of natural resources and control of nation-wide corporate monopolies, Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania told the 12th annual conference of governors in an address today.

"In dealing with law enforcement there must be no twilight zone between State and Federal authority where the enemies of society may hide themselves and escape punishment," he said. "Neither can we suffer the State-made nullification of our National Constitution, whether under the guise of a State referendum or by the failure of the State to exercise its co-ordinate powers. Federal and State action should be cooperative, not hostile."

He attacked Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as "an example of the failure of the Federal Government to co-operate with the States" in allowing the State police of Pennsylvania to inspect breweries under Federal permit only during the daytime and not at night, "when crimes always are committed."

The use of Federal taxes for building of a national highways system, the development of natural resources and industry within the States was defended by Governor Pinchot.

MOTHER CONFESSES KILLING 2 WITH AXE

Warsaw, N. Y., July 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ida Flint has confessed that she inflicted the wounds on her two young daughters which resulted in their deaths Saturday, District Attorney Greff announced today.

After striking the children on their heads with an axe, she tried to commit suicide, using the axe.

The woman told the district attorney and Sheriff Simons that she had intended ending her own life for some time because her husband was too cruel to her and that she could not bear to think of leaving her two daughters, Helen, ten, and Rosie, six, behind her.

VICTORY FOR WOMEN MINISTERS DELAYED

York, England, July 26 (A.P.)—Women will not be able to become ministers in the Wesleyan Church yet awhile, their victory of last Tuesday at the congress of ministerial and lay representatives having proved short-lived. At a pastoral session confined to ministerial representatives today an amendment sending the report back to committee for further consideration was adopted 204 votes to 149.

POINCARE FOR NEW TAXES

Paris, July 26 (A.P.).—The franc today continued Saturday's upward movement and by noon was 38.92 to the dollar and 189.23 to the pound.

Paris, July 26 (A.P.).—"The franc must save itself." This is the guiding principle of the financial rehabilitation plan adopted by the Cabinet of Raymond Poincare.

It is expected to be carried out principally by realizing another four billion francs annually in indirect taxes.

Among other ideas is that the business turnover tax, now variable, will be fixed at a uniform rate of 2 per cent.

The decision to increase indirect taxes has been motivated by the clearly and repeatedly expressed opposition of Parliament to having recourse in credits from abroad.

Parliament will be asked to give the government the right to proceed by decree only in certain drastic administrative economies when M. Poincare reads his statement of policy tomorrow.

The premier will ask the Chamber to postpone debate on interpellations until the bill comes up for debate. He will make this request a question of confidence.

100,000 Sunday Attendance at Exposition

Philadelphia, July 26.—It is estimated 2,000,000 persons paid admissions at the Sesquicentennial Exposition, the first Sunday which all the amusements within the area were free.

Exposition officials said it was the largest Sunday attendance since the fair opened May 31.

True, the cost is slightly greater—but consider how much more you buy!

SHAW IS HONOR GUEST ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

Piquant Utterances Looked for From Aged Satirist at Commons Dinner

London, July 26 (A.P.).—George Bernard Shaw, that one-time scornful Irish iconoclast, now somewhat mellowed by years, celebrated his seventieth birthday today.

Today, G. B. S. is not the man with the bristling red beard of the eighties, but benign elderly gentleman of benevolent mien with a white hirsute adornment, as erect and trim and seemingly as youthful as ever and still adhering to his creed of being plunged to the neck in the life of his time.

Tonight in the House of Commons he will be an honor guest at a dinner which is being looked forward to by the people generally for the birth of still another of the piquant controversies in which he for years has participated with great zest.

It had been hoped that an arrangement could be made by which his speech would be broadcast, but Mr Shaw declined to pledge himself not to engage in controversial utterances. Wherefore the listeners-in are downcast, for Mr. Shaw is as remarkable an after-dinner speaker as he is a satirist.

Mr. Shaw probably is the richest literary man alive. He collects royalties from all parts of the world. Would-be newspaper interviewers are seldom able to make their way through the barred entrance to his home in Adolphi terrace to obtain the satirist's views on the topics of the day. Sometimes they write lists of questions and G. B. S. places his professional fee after each, sometimes as follows—"Viewl on Ireland, 50 pounds; on women, 100 pounds; on America, 500 pounds."

For his views on the British government he charges only 10 shillings, and if he is in a particularly generous mood they are given gratis.

His portrait, either in photograph or caricature, faces one on the pages of almost every newspaper in London, in addition the gossip and editorial columns dwell upon his personality, achievements, wit, paradoxicalness and physical youthfulness.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Evans Spalding of Boston to Wed Miss Marian Holt of Chicago

MRS. JOHN MITCHELL
The former Elizabeth Caswell is to spend part of the Summer on the North Shore. (Garo photo.)

ROMANCE FORGES another link today between society of the Windy City and Boston as the engagement of a Chicago belle and a well known young Boston man is announced formally in the first named city.

THE BRIDEGROOM ELECT is Evans Spalding, Harvard graduate of the 1915 class, World War veteran, member of the Harvard and Essex County Clubs, and son of Mrs. A. D. C. Reese of Boston and Manchester on the North Shore.

MISS MARION HOLT of Chicago's smart younger set is the fiancee and her parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Holt of Chicago and Lake Forest. According to present plans there will be a brilliant wedding celebrated some time in September.

THE ALLIANCE brings to Boston another charming young matron, for the Spalding menage is to be set in on Beacon Hill, where Mr. Spalding has taken a house in West Cedar street.

FELLOW CLUB MEMBERS of the fiance in the Useless Club will figure in ceremonial entourage, just as they have in recent entertainings for Miss Holt when she was a guest, last week-end of Mrs. Reese at the shore.

MISS HOLT will in all probability become East again before wedding bells ring, to be a guest of her future mother-in-law, and to perfect certain plans for the important day.

AT THEIR QUAINT Cape Cod home at Quissett, Mr. and Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott are putting in a part of the Summer season. The new Mrs. Endicott (she was Priscilla Maxwell of Maxwell Court, Rockville, Ct.) is making hosts of friends in Boston's upper set.

THE ENDICOTT-MAXWELL wedding was a super-brilliant affair of last September, with a private train of guests going from Boston for the occasion. A prolonged wedding journey took Mr. and Mrs. Endicott to Florida, to the White House as Presidential family guests, and thence to Europe. Really a record-breaker as such journeys go.

ESTABLISHED in their new home in the Georgian apartments, Pittsburgh, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wilbur Dawson are at home to their friends after their honeymoon journey. Mrs. Dawson was Miss Mary DeHoit, the marriage a June ceremonial at the Hotel Somerset, in Boston.

QUITE ONE of Newport's loviest girls is Miss Aubrey Hoffman, raven-tressed and willowly daughter of the former Mr. John Elliz Sherman, who is now Mrs. Norrie Sellar, Mother and daughter are guests at the Rhode Island spa home of Mrs. Sellar's sister, Mrs. Harold Brown.

HISTORICAL AND anniversary pageants and such agitate even such a sophisticated Summer colony as Newport, it would seem. The fashionable set there is showing some interest in the early August, Trinity Church anniversary remembrance.

MISS NATALIE MERRILL is arranging a tableau, the "Epi sode of Bishop Berkeley," and Mrs. William Veale Pratt of the Army Set is doing the "George Washington" number. It is to be in the lovely little Art Association Building.

FARGHALY BEY, Egyptian of high degree, possessor of much wealth, and one of Egypt's men of affairs, has just completed an American journey that combined business, sightseeing and entertainment, and included Boston.

THE BEY'S PRIME MOTIVE of travel on this side was a survey of the American cotton industry, a field especially interesting to him as a large grower of Egyptian cotton, is now en route to his homeland.

OFF ON A TOUR of self-imposed duties, Leonard S. Whalen sailed yesterday to England where, each Summer, he makes a study of men's choirs in English cathedrals. All the famous cathedral choirs are on his list.

AS ORGANIST of St. Paul's Church in Dorchester, Mr. Whalen occupies an enviable position in local music circles, with a reputation in his special metier that goes far afield. His aim is to inculcate into American church music choral ideas as exemplified in English churches, which stand pre-eminent in this regard.

KING BORIS TRAVELING IN SWITZERLAND INCOG

Geneva, Switzerland, July 26 (A.P.).—King Boris, the young Bulgarian sovereign, whose actual whereabouts on his vacation in Switzerland has been kept secret, spent ten days at Lugano, to Correiere Del Tic, no signer.

He was registered incognito at the Palace Hotel there and made numerous excursions, visiting Isola Isolle (Italy), on Lake Como, and Stresa (Italy), on Lake Maggiore. He also attended the automobile races at Monte Ceneri, later leaving for Interlaken.

DOCTOR DIES 4 DAYS AFTER HIS MARRIAGE

Providence, July 26.—Dr. Frederick G. Phillips, noted surgeon of this city, died four days after his marriage to Miss Elizabeth Louise Foster. He was 49 years old. He gave much of his time to the government during the war and volunteered for service with the Red Cross at the time of the Halifax explosion.

EXTENDS TIME FOR VETERANS

Further extension of time for all classes of vocational training effecting hundreds of World War veterans throughout New England is certained to the World War Veterans' Act of 1924 as recently adopted by Congress, according to a statement issued by Capt. William J. Blake, regional manager of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau in Massachusetts.

The time limit for the termination of all veterans in placement training has been extended to Jan. 1, 1927, and July 2, 1928, for service men in institutional training, the expiration date having recently been set as effective July 30, 1926. This extension of time in all classes of vocational training, under the amendment to the existing law is applicable only to those veterans who were in training on June 30, 1926.

Under the new legislation the director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau is granted authority to refuse to make further payments to any guardian, curator or conservator who, in his opinion, may be regarded as unfit to properly conserve the estate or supervise the expenses of man or woman, to whom he has been legally assigned as.

According to Capt. Blake provision is also made that the schedule of ratings provided by the World War Veterans' Act and hereafter be applicable to disabilities formerly compensable only under the War Risk Insurance Act as amended, that is, disabilities incurred between April 6, 1917, and July 2, 1921.

WOMAN TAKES POISON

Lowell, July 26.—Standing on the porch of her alleged sweetheart's home in front of his wife, Mrs. Alice E. Eldred, twenty-two, of Tewksbury, attempted suicide by swallowing poison.

The man alleged by the police to be claimed by the girl as her sweetheart is Harry C. Eldridge, twice her age and the father of seven children.

With his wife and children Eldridge lives at No. 157 Parker street, and to this address Mrs. Eldred, two years married, but separated from her husband, went after returning from a trip to Boston.

According to the police, she rang the doorbell and it was answered by Mrs. Eldridge. Then Eldridge himself was called at the visitor's request.

There were some words and Mrs. Eldred suddenly snatched something from her vanity case and lifted it to her lips. As she shrieked under the sting of the burning disinfectant, Eldridge snatched the article from her hand and discovered it to be a vial, the contents of which she had swallowed.

The income of $35,000, a gift to the Y. W. C. A., by the trustees of the Paul Wilde Jackson estate, will be used for educational purposes. It will be known as the Henry Clay Jackson Fund.

Announcement of the gift was made by Mrs. William H. Robey, vice-president.

Would Exempt U. S. Liners From Dry Law

Washington, July 26 (I.N.S.).—Introduction of a bill in Congress to exempt American ships from the Volstead law is likely to be the upshot of the present controversy as to whether liquor is being sold by employees on the Leviathan, it was learned today.

Shipping Board officials admit that the dry law has hindered American vessels in their competition with foreign ships.

Some of the vets feel that for economic reasons, if for no other, American ships should be permitted to sell liquor.

MYSTERY WOMAN READY TO FACE MURDER QUIZ

Canton, O., July 26 (A.P.).—Reaching deep within Canton's "Jungle" today, detectives are believed to be groping closer to the sinister figure who plotted the murder of Don R. Mellett, newspaper publisher, shot to death on July 16.

Word came from the underworld that the mystery woman, regarded as the key to the investigation, will surrender to police today, having arrived in the city last night prepared to face inquisition.

MOVE TO AVERT RADIO CHAOS

Philadelphia, July 26 (A.P.).—Plans went forward today for a convention of representatives of the radio industry to stop what the sponsors of the movement said was threatening broadcasting chaos and possibly, the abandonment of the radio by the American public.

Arrangements for the convention are being made by an executive committee consisting of Louis B. F. Raycroft, chairman of the radio section of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies, and the presidents of the Radio Manufacturers Association, National Association of Broadcasters, and the American Radio Relay League.

A call for the convention, specifying the place and date, will be issued shortly.

Soft as a Zephyr Breeze

—your skin will be if you go in Conrad's at 25 Winter St. and get a tube of Velouderma, a marvelous Russian preparation, at 25 cents a tube. It is very extensively used in Europe by ladies who pride themselves on their beauty, and who know the value of a clear, soft, velvety pink and white skin. Velouderma is marvelous. It gives the skin the soft glow of health. Awfully handy, too. Carry a tube of Velouderma in your hand or golf bag and whenever your face or hands feel chapped, roughened or calloused in any way just apply a little and they will take on the texture of a kitten's ear. Velouderma is deliciously fragrant, too, just like fresh roses or violets that are moist with dew in the Springtime. Don't let your skin become spoiled with the burning wind and Summer sun. Go to Conrad's and get a 25-cent tube of Velouderma.

He Creates Beauties

—does Mr. Meadows, expert cosmetician of Famous Players-Lasky and other moving picture corporations in Hollywood. Mr. Meadows is now at Filene's, demonstrating the Max Factor cosmetics and giving a prescription to, and instructing free of charge, anyone who wishes to improve her looks and bring out her latent beauty. He has made many a famous movie star, and your star will shine brightly, and you will scintillate with radiant beauty and loveliness if you go to one of his free lectures at Filene's and learn the true art of make up. "Make up that shows is not good make up," says Mr. Meadows.

Do not have a shiny nose. it is absolutely unnecessary as well as continual powdaring is unnecessary, and you will look fresh as a budding rose all day long if you un, under Mr. Meadows' directions, these wonderful Max Factor creams, rouges, eye-brow pencils, etc.

In taking movies the camera detects much more than the eye so it is essential that one's skin be in perfect condition and that there is no sign of make up on the actress's face. The Max Factor make up stays perfect all day and is water proof as well as sun and freckle proof.

Mr. Meadows lectures at Filene's every day at 2 P. M. Tickets for admission may be obtained free of charge in the toilet goods department on the first floor. Classes with individual instruction are also daily at 10.

I went to Mr. Meadows' lecture the other day and it was simply fascinating. I have never seen anyone improve a girl's looks so. It demonstrated on the girls in the audience. You go in and learn all about these Max Factor cosmetics. They are truly marvelous, and the method of application is most unique. He certainly knows how to make one beautiful! Hear him at Filene's.

And Now, I Find

—that D. R. Emerson, 85 Temple Place, is selling Velouderma, that wonderful imported preparation that is becoming so popular for giving these warm days when we are so apt to get freckle or sunburned. It is only 25 cents a tube. A friend of mine has just returned from Lake Placid and Saranac. There in the mountains the sun is tremendously fiery. She had a tube of Velouderma with her. She got it at Emerson-son's and before a week was up it was in demand by every athletic girl who played golf and tennis, rode or who was out in the sun at any time. It is marvelous, feels cool and lovely, takes all fire out of sunburn. At the seashore, too, it is a necessity. Do go into Emerson's and buy a tube. It is worth many times its price and away will go sunburn and freckles.

Miss Helen Perkins Bly of 111 Audubon Road has been chosen as the Boston Girl of 1926. She has the utmost in style, grace and carriage and is a very able choice for the silver wreath, which she is here seen wearing on her head.

Chiffon for Comfort and Style

The thin cobwebby gauziness of chiffon—how cool, elusive and stylish it sounds. You can wear chiffon hosiery that really does wear if you go to Talbot's, 395 Washington St., and get their all silk $1.95 Holeproof chiffon stockings. They are thin—but firmly and beautifully made and wear—oh so much better than ordinary chiffon.

The colors are simply perfect; tones to go with every gown. They include the three latest ones from Paris — gray beige, Paris gray and Riviera. Ask to see them, they are really very beautiful. They are just the ones to go with our Summer frocks.

Of course these $1.95 Holeproof chiffon stockings are full-fashioned and their perfect sheerness is most flattering. To be without chiffon hosiery is to be without style. The smart Parisienne wears them at all times, to the races, tea in the Bois, on the promenade as well as swaying in the breeze to sweet music under a silvery moon. All silk chiffon stockings, the same quality as these at Talbot's, cost almost twice as much elsewhere. Holeproofs are the best made. I find they look smarter and wear better than any others.

At $1.00, also, are Holeproof stockings of fine silk chiffon with mercerized lisle feet, tops and soles. They look wonderfully and wear awfully well and may be had in the same exquisite shades as the $1.95 chiffon.

People are beginning to realize more and more the outstanding qualities of the Holeproof hosiery at Talbot's. So great has been the demand that they have greatly enlarged this department. I do wish you would try Holeproof chiffon stockings. They are wonderful.

Last Week of Sale

This is the last week of the extraordinary sale of Bates-Street shirts at Talbot's, 395 Washington St. It is an opportunity that no one can afford to miss. Bates-Street shirts are known as one of New England's finest products, and every year at this time Talbot's have these mills Summer semi-annual sale of these wonderful shirts.

My dear, you must go in and see them. At $1.75 is a Bates Street white shirt special for $1.75. White madras, broadcloth and poplin with collar attached or collar-band. These are regular $2.00 to $3.00 shirts, on sale at this price for this week only. 3 for $5.00.

During this warm weather clean shirts, and plenty of them, are essential to the comfort and appearance of the well-dressed man.

At $2.65 are beautiful shirts of finely woven madras in checks and stripes in all cool Summer colorings; many very sporty patterns. Bates-Street shirts of this quality regularly sell for $3.00 and $3.50, but for this semi-annual sale they are marked to $2.65, 3 for $10.00.

The buttonholes, the cut, the material, everything about Bates-Street shirts is the best and gives one the satisfaction of knowing they could wear no better. A number of $5.00 and $6.00 shirts have been reduced to $3.95. Fine rayon, some all silks, imported broadcloths and madras. Absolutely the finest grades of Bates-Street shirt, 3 for $11.50.

You know what a fussy man Uncle John is, well he won't wear anything except these Bates-Street shirts and of course he always buys the best. I love to see a man of his age well dressed, don't you? Do take advantage of this wonderful sale of Bates-Street shirts at Talbot's.

My Husband Uses It

—every day before shaving John uses Velouderma. He won't be without a tube. They are 25 cents each at Melvin & Badger's, 43 Temple Place, and every day he sneaks a run in and get him one. He puts it on, then lathers and shaves, and on account of its being very healing and soothing all irritations are allayed, and his skin is soft and fresh. During these last few hot days it has been his chief joy in life. He feels wonderfully refreshed, and Velouderma certainly keeps his skin in perfect condition.

Barbara uses it on her babies all the time. It is not greasy, but comes in jelly-like form, and she finds it is nothing better for a baby's delicate skin. Heat thing in the world for chapping and chafing. Velouderma is important, and I am more than enthusiastic about the merits of this little 25 cent tube.

Summer Heat With Torrents

A rain means very little to me. Every day, no matter what the weather, I browse about in the Boston shops, looking for cosmetics, clothes and things for one's house—unusual and distinctive articles at prices to suit all pocketbooks. This is a most excellent time for picking up some wonderful values, as many shops are having pre-inventory and semi-annual sales. It is well worth the thrifty woman's time to come to Boston and take advantage of this season.

Affectionately,

Priscilla

Summertime Tip

A little headwork and hose work combined should result in an appreciable difference in the temperature and comfort of your Summer home. Piazzas and the outside of windows should be rinsed off frequently with the hose. Blinds should be closed during the heat of the day, then opened wide at evening. The sun, of course, should be excluded, and air admitted to the fullest possible extent. The youngster of the family is sure to enjoy the hose work.

Lamb Variations

When you think of hot weather meats, do you think of lamb? The attractive flavor of this meat blends well with the seasonable vegetables and it is especially nice for the Summer diet, because it has relatively little fat.

Here are a few menus planned around lamb dishes:

Shoulder of lamb, mint sauce, browned potatoes, new peas and mushrooms, tomato-cucumber salad, raspberry shortcake.

Braised lamb neck chops with carrots and mashed potatoes, currant jelly, fresh pineapple salad, cookies, iced tea.

Stuffed roasted breast of lamb, radishes, Franconia potatoes, baked tomatoes, head lettuce salad, jellied fruits, custard sauce, small cakes.

Roast leg of lamb, mint ice, boiled potatoes, corn on the cob, combination salad, peach cake, lemon sauce, iced coffee.

Pan broiled lamb chops, mashed potatoes, celery, buttered new turnips, tomato salad, French dressing, berry pie, coffee.

Crown roast of lamb, dressing, preserved cherries, mashed potatoes, buttered string beans, celery-apple salad, fruit tapioca, iced tea.

Lamb pie, baked potatoes, baked Summer squash, beet relish, apple Betty.

Lamb croquettes, creamed potatoes, radishes, boiled spinach, carrot salad, peach cobbler.

Creamed lamb on toast, cottage fried potatoes, cabbage salad, berries and cream, layer cake.

Curried lamb, boiled rice, buttered beets, lettuce, French dressing, chocolate pudding, whipped cream.

FRUIT SALAD FINISH

When making fruit salad, sprinkle grated cocoanut over the top and add a few preserved cherries for color.

THAT remark may cause the modern housewife to smile with sympathy—just as she probably does when she meets a housewife who does not know about Linit—how it saves time and labor—how easily cotton clothes are made to look and feel like linen.

Linit is distinctly different from all old-fashioned starches which clot and smear on. Linit penetrates each thread and gives the whole fabric a soft, pliable finish. In this way Linit fastens back into the threads the fuzzy fibres that catch dirt.

And Linit makes even the most inexpensive cotton look and feel like linen. This is why so many women now use Linit on all wash garments and household fabrics.

Finnan Haddie Newburg

Wash the finnan haddie well, cover it with boiling water and simmer for six minutes or until it softens and will flake easily. Remove all skin and bone and flake, but not too finely. Prepare in a double boiler a rich white sauce, one and a half cupfuls of it, seasoned with scraped onion, minced parsley, chopped green pepper, salt and pepper. Pour the sauce gradually over a slightly beaten egg yolk, whip with the egg beater and add the flaked finnan haddie. Serve on squares of hot buttered toast or in patty shells or fried bread cases. The finnan haddie which comes in glass jars may be used.

Macaroons

One and one-half cups sugar, ½ cup Ralston, 2 eggs, ½ cup nuts, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1¼ cups bran, ¼ cup milk, ½ cup cocoanut, 1 cup whole wheat flour, pinch of salt.

Mix all ingredients and drop from teaspoon on greased tins. Allow room for spreading. Bake in quick oven.

Condiment Comments

I have been quarreling! With some one who claims that men have more discriminating palates than women. My opponent claims that the truth of this is proved by the fact that most of the famous chefs are men. But I stubbornly believe that eventually there will be just as many of the females of the species standing on the high pinnacle of cooking fame as there are of the male persuasion.

Our discussion drifted into condiments and later into Worcestershire Sauce. I passed along the tip recently gave you of adding a teaspoon of the one and only original Worcestershire with melted butter served for bathing purposes with steamed clams. I think I gave you, too, the tip of adding a dash of Worcestershire to the melted butter served with asparagus tips. I don't know of a single salad dressing, gravy or relish, that is not improved by a dash or more of this most excellent sauce. Some of my readers assure me that it proves very helpful with their indigestion and acts as an excellent appetizer if a spoonful is taken before a meal.

Feeling pretty wilted and at odds with the world these days? "Hot Weather Blues" might prove a popular title for a Summer-time song.

I don't know of any better insurance against these unaccountable attacks of glooms than a visit to the ice box if you know there is a bottle of Moxie waiting for you. There is surely something in this bitter-sweet cooling beverage that seems to put a better complexion on an unsympathetic world. Moxie, you know, is America's national health drink and a tonic endorsed by millions. Accompanied by most any kind of sandwich, it makes a refreshing hot-weather lunch for the office worker as well as a satisfying between-time lunch with a cookie for the stay-at-home. It's perfect on a picnic, ideal for the motor trip and not to be despised for the menu of the Would-Be-Thin. Once you get the Moxie habit, you'll never hesitate at the soda fountain. You'll know that what you're going to order will be neither too rich or too strong, you'll know it will just hit the spot, will always be of the same high quality and of the same thirst-quenching power, will be neither too bitter or too sweet, but an ideal blend of the two. And best of all, you'll know that it will not only taste good but be good for you.

Drinks With Food Value

Variety in serving, like a new dress on an old friend, is a pleasant surprise for the family. Instead of the usual, why not serve one of these easily prepared Summer drinks, which combine refreshment with properties of healthful food value?

STRAWBERRY (OR RASPBERRY) MILK SHAKE

Mix 2 tablespoons of syrup (recipe follows) with 1 cup of chilled milk.

Syrup—Use one-half as much sugar as washed and prepared fresh berries, water to cover. Cook until berries are softened, then wash and strain thru cheese cloth. Canned berries or jams may be used.

EGG MILK SHAKE

1 egg, 1 cup milk, vanilla or nutmeg, beat egg, add milk and flavoring, chill and serve.

CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE

1 tablespoon cocoa paste, 1 cup milk, mix milk and cocoa paste, chill and serve.

CARAMEL MILK SHAKE

Mix 2 tablespoons of caramel syrup with 1 cup chilled milk.

To make caramel syrup—In a saucepan, melt 1 cup sugar until light brown, stirring constantly; add 1 cup boiling water, and cook until a thick syrup is formed.

Dressing Up Vegetables

Three-compartment plates are harder to find in the shops than hen's teeth these days. The American housewife has discovered that one platter meal saves many dishes and, moreover, can be made very attractive.

Here is a suggestion for a VEGETABLE PLATTER MEAL:

Rice with tomato sauce, creamed cabbage, beets, corn.

Have the vegetables well buttered and seasoned. Allow one to three tablespoons of butter to one cup of hot cooked vegetables. Arrange the vegetables attractively on a compartment plate or on your large dinner plate and you will have a satisfying and nutritious hot weather dinner.

Here is a tomato sauce for the rice. One cup tomatoes, 2 tbsp. flour, 2 tbsp. butter, ½ tsp. salt, pepper, ¼ tsp. chopped onion, ¼ tsp. thyme, ½ bay leaf, 1 tsp. parsley, ½ tbsp. celery tops. Mix as for cream sauce.

Why plan menus ahead? Carefully planned menus mean that one menu will provide for all ages in the family with slight changes. Time will be saved in marketing. Preparation and long cooking can be done in the morning; fuel will be saved by oven or fireless cooked meals and each day's meals can be planned to provide the protective foods.

For Summertime lunches, here are three health rules: some fruit (fresh, dried or canned), a salad containing lettuce, tomato, celery or cabbage, and a glass of milk or some dish cooked with milk.

Silver Like New— Easily and Safely Cleaned

Here's a hint worth cutting out and keeping—dull and tarnished silver can be quickly cleaned with the aid of that old standby, Baking Soda—either ARM & HAMMER BRAND or COW BRAND.

Both of these famous brands are made by Church & Dwight Co., Inc., and both are the same product—pure bicarbonate of soda, which is an active agent for cleaning silver safely.

To clean your silver

Place the tarnished silver with an aluminum spoon in a granitewarne pan, add enough hot water to cover the silver, then for each quart of water add one tablespoonful of Church & Dwight Baking Soda (bicarbonate of soda) and one tablespoonful of table salt.

Leave the silver in this solution for a few minutes—(note: silver with an oxidized finish should not be cleaned in this way)—then remove the silver, rinse it with cold water and wipe with a soft cloth—the clean silver will sparkle like new.

Embossed silver should be brushed with a soft moist brush covered with baking soda, to thoroughly clean the crevices.

This is but one of a hundred helpful uses that make Church & Dwight Baking Soda (bicarbonate of soda) a household necessity—get a package today at your grocer's.

'BABY BAKER'S' FATHER HOME

Brockton, July 26.—Charles B. Baker, wholesale fish dealer, who has been missing more than a week while his four-year-old daughter, "Baby Baker," cried for him, walked into his home today.

The well known business man refused any information as to his whereabouts or why he had vanished after mailing a letter to himself at his Brockton address, containing the combination numbers of his safe.

Before he disappeared, Baker cleaned up every detail connected with his business, paying off the last debt.

Police Inspector George C. Chase, who conducted a search of Greater Boston for the father on behalf of "Baby Baker," was in New York today, but is expected to question the fish man later.

NORTHEAST BREEZES TO KEEP BOSTON COOL

Fresh breezes out of the Northeast will play along the Massachusetts coastline and keep Greater Boston cool for the coming forty-eight hours, according to the forecast of the local weather bureau.

For the first time in the history of the Boston weather station, the weather man today took cognizance of tropical storms. For the information of steamship lines whose vessels traverse tropical waters, A. G. Loveland, local meteorologist, wishes it made public that the West Indian hurricane was raging early today south of Key West, northeast of Cuba, in latitude 78 and longitude 24.

Belgian Rulers to Share in War Time Bread

Brussels, July 26.—The King and Queen of Belgium will share with the humblest of their subjects the government's "gray bread" when Belgium today resorts to this wartime measure in an effort to economize for the purpose of preventing financial disaster.

Universal use of wartime bread is expected to save 500,000 francs daily. The King and Queen, it is also announced, intend to deny themselves all luxuries.

CAR KILLS MAN IN ALLSTON

Crouched beside the car tracks on Cambridge street, Allston, trying to close a valve connected with the city water supply Tony Pendalaro, thirty-six, of No. 132 Endicott street, North End, was struck by a one-man car and instantly killed.

Thomas J. McGee, of No. 17 Eliot street, Cambridge, operator of the car was held on a technical charge of manslaughter. It is believed that he was unable to see Pendalaro because of the position in which he was lying while trying to locate the valve.

REVUE OPENS AT STATE

After more than two weeks of intensive rehearsal the "Summertime Girl" revue, sponsored by the Boston Daily Advertiser and in which a dozen dainty darlings of Greater Boston have prominent parts, is ready for presentation on the stage of Loew's state Theatre today when it begins a week's engagement there.

The big production, staged by Victor Hyde, has 12 elaborate scenes and [illegible] numbers by the "Summertime Girl." In addition [illegible] is interspersed the show with other local talent making the revue into a regular production in every way.

The "Summertime Girl"—shown above are Florence Johnson, of Cambridge, the ideal "Summertime Girl," selected from a field of 200 contestants, and Louise Brooks of Boston.

Taylorville, Ill., July 26 (I.N.S.).—With H. M. Hoxey, head of the National Cancer Research Institute, in jail here, a warrant for the arrest of Arvid Persons, Hoxey's assistant, was issued today, the second step of a State inquiry into deaths at the institution.

More than twenty persons have died while taking the institute's "cure" for cancer, said Anfonow.

Persons were said by Anfonow to have been an associate at one time of Dr. Charles C. Palmag, notorious "germ" witness of the McClintock-Shepherd murder trial at Chicago.

Bruce Barton to Aid in Making Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, July 26.—Bruce Barton, the author of "The Man That Nobody Knew," which has a circulation of 200,000 up to date, is on his way West.

Cecil De Mille

Yes, you have guessed it. He is headed for the movies, as most of these celebrities are when they travel to Hollywood.

Barton was engaged by Jesse L. Lasky to write a drama on religion, but after Cecil de Mille had laid all his plans to film "King of Kings," Lasky decided it would not be a generous thing to compete with him.

You will admit these producers are not all so generous. But then there is a friendship of many years between Lasky and De Mille which even the break between Famous Players and De Mille did not affect.

Barton will keep an editorial eye on "King of Kings," conferring with De Mille and Jeanie McPherson. I was interested in hearing Lasky say that he considered the time was ripe for a religious screen play.

"This," he said, "is the age of materialism and also the age when there is need of great faith, following the disillusionment of the World War."

And what is more natural than having Bruce Barton, that exponent of religious faith, come West?

KATHLEEN KEY is leaving for San Antonio tonight as the guest of the city. Strangely enough, Kitty's visit has nothing to do with the movies, not even "Ben Hur," in which she plays an important part.

She is invited to assist in the opening of a new municipal building seating 6,000, and an event to which all the State high lights and political czars will attend.

She has received word that she will be met by a ban dand escorted by all the city officials to the auditorium, where she will be a guest of honor.

"FOOLS OF FASHION!" Of course it is a movie. What else would have such a title! This is the picture of which I spoke in my column some days ago, at Tiffany made production with Louis Gasnier directing. The cast has been greatly amplified since I mentioned Mae Busch, Hedda Hopper and Theodore Von Eltz.

Robert Ober, who will play the male lead opposite Miss Busch, was added to the cast yesterday. Ober, by the by, has just written a photo-drama called "Purple Alabaster." Do you know what that means? No, neither do I.

ONE has to be active to keep track of Bessie Love, whose free lancing activities takes her around to all the studios. Her next move I have just been told will be to the Fox studios in Hollywood.

Bessie Love

With three of four offers to consider, she finally decided to accept the one made her to play the feminine lead in "Going Crooked," which will be directed by George Melford.

No wonder Bessie keeps so thin, when she isn't moving her makeup box to one of the studios she is dancing the Charleston.

In fact, no party that Bessie attends is complete without a Charleston exhibition with Bessie doing her stuff in a way that has made many people credit her with being the discoverer of this popular dance.

RALPH E. BUSHMAN is certainly following in his dad's footsteps. He made such a hit in "Brown of Harvard" that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer signed him on a long term contract.

He will play one of the principal roles in "The Understanding Heart." I remember Ralph when he was a small boy in Chicago. He used to come and call for his father at the Essanay Film Company and even then he always said he was going to be a movie actor.

With a wife and child to support now it is a good thing for him that his wishes are being fulfilled in such substantial fashion.

I AM constantly hearing about "The Marriage Clause," Lois Weber's last picture. Hearing about it I want to say in a way that makes me eager to see it. Miss Weber told me that it would follow "So This Is Paris" at the Forum Theatre.

MY old friend, Ben Blumenthal, who controls a large number of motion picture theatres abroad, sent Elmer Somlyo to call on me. Somylo is just back from Europe where he put Frances Geal and Giles Kluber, European legitimate actors, under contract.

Miss Geal, who is four feet, eleven and according to photographic evidence, a beauty, will be brought out to Hollywood with a view to entering her in the movies. With the remembrance of Vilma Banky's sensational success, this should be an easy matter.

WOMAN PAINTS HER OWN HOUSE

Aided by her fourteen-year-old son, Vincent, a Dorchester High School student, Mrs. Martha Strycharski, a widow of No. 89 Hamilton street, Dorchester, is demonstrating the fact a woman can do and frequently does man's work, even if it be of a dangerous nature.

Although handicapped by poor health, Mrs. Strycharski has donned overalls, and with her son's assistance, is engaged in painting her three-family house.

After a long period of poor health, she decided that she would be benefited by residence in the country. Funds were low, however, and the three-family house must first be sold.

But before the property could be placed on the market it required painting, and the cost of painting these days is considerable.

After inquiring into costs, Mrs. Strycharski decided to do the work herself, and to decide with her was to act.

Purchasing paint, brushes and ladders, the woman set to work, with her son doing most of the high climbing. For two weeks the pair have labored steadily, with the result that the work is nearing completion, and the trek to the country draws nearer.

RAILROAD MILK RATE HEARINGS IN PLYMOUTH

Plymouth, July 26.—After a delay due to the arrival of the railroad milk rate hearings got under way today with Commissioners Ernest I. Lewis and F. E. Mullen of the Interstate Commerce Commission sitting together to gather evidence on which to base their report to the whole commission.

The hearings, which are expected to last all week, are a result of the announced intention of some of the railroads to increase the freight rate on milk. Representing Massachusetts officially are Leo F. Hardy and Louis Goldberg as agents of the Department of Public Utilities, while many others were in attendance as representatives of dairy producers of the State.

MAN FOUND FLOATING OFF SPECTACLE ISLAND

Charles E. Phelan of No. 127 Chambers street, West End, with two other men, discovered the body of a man floating in the harbor off Spectacle Island. The police boat, Ellis H. Curtis, was summoned and took the body to Constitution Wharf, whence it was taken to the Northern Mortuary. The police describe the body as that of a man about 58 years old, 5 feet tall, weighing 190 pounds, of sandy complexion and blue eyes.

NEW WARNING BY MUSSOLINI

Rome, July 2[illegible] (A.P.).—A stern order has been issued by Premier Mussolini for all Fascisti in Italy to cease local quarrels and devote their energies to aiding the government in its economic battle.

The order is contained in a message to Secretary-General Turati, to be delivered to the local Fascist congresses which are being held throughout the nation during the coming two weeks.

"At the local congresses," the premier told Turati, "you must say loudly and clearly to all Black Shirts that the great economic battle undertaken by the government is of decisive importance for the future development and greatness of the Fascist revolution.

"It is absolutely necessary that each Fascist consider himself spiritually and practically mobilized. Quarrels must cease."

A HOME PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE WHO THINK

BOSTON, MONDAY, JULY 26, 1926

SECOND SECTION

A Thrilling Story of Night Life and Night Clubs; A Mad Whirl of Adventure

A Paper That Goes Into the Home, Dependable Fearless, Entertaining and Instructive.

Joslyn yielded to the arms of Kelvin. Their lips met and clung.

Joslyn Poe, daughter of a proud, but impoverished Virginia family, wants a career, not marriage. Her mother wants her to wed. The wild blood of a line of daring women runs in her veins. She wants adventure. A seeress tells her of the "wildness" in her blood. She goes to a dance. She determines she will settle her problem that night—to marry George Ransom, well-to-do, but no dandy, or—go to New York in seek of adventure. She meets a stranger at the dance.

Milton Stein, the stranger, advises Joslyn to go to the city and to dance. Joslyn, hungry and discouraged, is heard weeping by Kittie Lane, a manicurist. Kittie gets Lee Rogers, a friend, to invite them to dinner.

While the girls are at the table with Rogers, James Kelvin movie star, attemps to cultivate Joslyn's acquaintance. There is a near row with Rogers. Kelvin goes away leaving with Joslyn a sense of some strange influence over her. A few days afterward Kittie is brought home blind from bad booze. Joslyn rushes to Stein's Academy to take a job as a "Taxi Dancer" to care for Kittie. In the academy she meets Stephen Bates, a man-about-town, who offers to go to Kittie's help.

Kittie's life and sight are saved by the doctors secured by Bates. They both go to a party at Bates'. Kelvin is there. He kills Bates in a quarrel.

Kittie saves Joslyn by telling the police that the death row was over her.

CHAPTER VII.

IT was over—the terrible strain, the shock of Stephen Bates' death. For hours there had been ting rigid grilling from the police with guarded doors, and no one allowed to leave the apartment. And at the last, reporters and flashlight photographers.

The bold confession from Kittie Lane that she had been the cause of the trouble between Bates and Kelvin was accepted without question by the police and reporters. Those who had been Bates' invited guests had but a vague knowledge of what had actually occurred, and Kittie's explanation was easy to believe. Upon the main facts all agreed—James Kelvin had escaped after killing Bates in a quarrel over a woman. All of the witnesses, shortly before dawn, were released upon their own recognizance.

Outside in the chill air of early morning, Joslyn and Kittie slipped away together toward Broadway in search of taxicabs. Each, after the stress, was in the grip of immense fatigue.

"It says something in the Bible about greater love hath no man than that he gives up his life to save somebody else—but I don't know about that," Joslyn said, shakenly. "I think you did a greater thing tonight for me. You gave

MOVE TO INDICT KILLING PASTOR

Fort Worth, Tex., July 26 (I.N.S.)—Dr. J. Frank Norris, Fort Worth pastor, waited today for the outcome of a Grand Jury investigation which within forty-eight hours may find him indicted for murder.

District Attorney R. K. Hanger marshalled his witnesses, anticipating the Grand Jurors, resuming their interrupted session Tuesday, would decide promptly whether to hold the fiery clergyman for killing D. E. Chipps, rich lumberman, July 17.

Chipps was killed in the church office building, adjoining the $1,000,000 First Baptist Church, of which Norris is pastor. The lumberman had gone there to remonstrate with Norris over the pastor's attacks on Mayor H. C. Meacham, based on the city's recent purchase of property owned by the Roman Catholic diocese of Texas. Norris shot, he said, believing his life to be in danger. Chipps was said to be unarmed.

THOUSANDS OF CATHOLICS AT 3 SHRINES

Coolidge Will Insist That France Pay Debt

2 CURES AT FISKDALE NOVENA

Catholics Flock to 3 N. E. Shrines Where Relics of St. Anne Are Shown

With two cures already reported, thousands of Roman Catholic pilgrims from all over New York State, today headed toward three shrines where relics of St. Anne annually effect remarkable cures.

Today is the feast of St. Anne, and at Fiskdale, Fall River, and Bristol, Conn., where there are small pieces of bones of the saint, crowds prepared for a day of devout worship.

At Bristol, Conn., Catholics and non-Catholics joined in preparations to receive the expected throngs. Homes were thrown open all over the town to receive the visitors who are unable to find sufficient hotel accomodations.

Special preparations were made to handle the crowds planning to attend the masses at St. Joseph's Church, where the relic of St. Anne will be applied to the faithful at all masses.

Michael Egan, forty, of No. 7 Chapman place, Cambridge, and twelve-year-old James W. Nixon, Jr., of Pittsfield, both crippled and walking only with the aid of crutches, left the shrine of St. Anne at Fiskdale, and walked without assistance. They were at the shrine again today with implicit faith in the healing powers of the relic.

More than 30,000 persons filled the streets of the little town normally claiming a population of 2,000 persons. Pilgrims from Utica, N. Y., and Schenectady, N. Y., were among the crowds that field into the church.

Sick and lame, tottering along with the aid of crutches or assisted by faithful friends, headed toward the shrines with implicit confidence that their ills would be healed.

While undoubtedly the largest throng of the day will visit Fiskdale, because of the many cures reported from there in years past. Thousands were headed toward the shrine of St. Anne in St. Anne's Church, Fall River, where the devotional exercises are patterned after those of St. Anne De Beaupre, Que. Elaborate preparations have been made by the Dominican Fathers for the reception of the huge crowds expected.

From early morning until late at night the sick and lame will file in and out of the church making their prayers for recovery to the saint, a piece of whose bones they will be permitted to touch.

The novena to St. Anne will be conducted at all three shrines every day for the remainder of this week, with special services.

ARREST GRANGE AS SPEEDER

Chicago, July 26 (A.P.)—"Red" Grange found it more difficult to outdistance two county highway policemen early today than to shake off tacklers.

The motorcycle pair arrested "Red" and charged he was driving 45 miles an hour in Ludlow, a village near Chicago.

Grange, who only recently returned from a trip to Hollywood, Cal., was accompanied by his father. "Red" posted a cash bond of $25 and was released.

BRITISH STRIKE AIDS U. S. COAL

Washington, July 26 (I.N.S.)—The American bituminous coal industry is profiting by continuation of the British miners' strike.

Soft coal exports for the first six months of the year were about 2,000,000 tons heavier than in the same period of 1925, the bulk of the increase having taken place in May and June to England and markets normally served by British mines.

Officials at the Department of Commerce said, however, that aside from the advertising American Coal will obtain through the breakdown of British production, the benefit probably will not be permanent.

SOCIETY WOMAN IN BLAST

Hub Art Collector Burned at Summer Home; Maid Is Killed

Efforts were being made today to place the blame for the explosion in the Summer mansion of Miss Susan Minns, wealthy Boston art collector, at Princeton, which caused serious injuries to Miss Minns and resulted in the death of a maid, Rose B. Hayward.

With the Minns residence, on of the show places of Princeton, badly wrecked in the blast officials were attempting to determine whether the gas heater was faulty.

Going to the basement of the home Miss Minns and the maid started an investigation of their own to determine the cause of the trouble they had experienced in heating the place.

While attepting to get the heater operating properly a blast hurled both several feet. Emergency calls were sent to physicians but the maid was dead before medical assistance could reach her.

Miss Minns was treated for serious cuts, bruises, exhaustion, brunes and burns. Her condition is regarded as serious.

Boston society knows Miss Minns as a collector of rare works of art, she has a home in Louisburg square, Beacon Hill.

Some of The Dances of Death" were her first selections. Soon her collection became heralded as the most complete and best in the country.

Her work took her into the courts in 1913. There she won a suit to recover the scimitar given by the Imaum of Muscat to Captain John Percival of the Frigate Constitution.

THREE AMERICAN WIVES GIVEN PARIS DIVORCES

Paris, July 26 (I.N.S.)—The Seine Tribunal today granted a divorce to Mrs. Wilhelmina Friedlander Arndt from Walter Arndt, New York publicist and writer on historical and civic subjects. The Arndts were married in New York on April 17, 1915. Mrs. Maurice Lincoln Hower, the former Ada Thompson Lewis, was granted a divorce. The Howers were married in Washington in 1916. A divorce was also granted to Mrs. Clare Kelly, the former Zola Price. The Kellys were married in Baltimore in 1925.

MUST SUPPORT FAMILY INSTEAD OF SERVING TERM

Worcester, July 26.—Albert Lavelle of Manchaug, who calmly took a two months' jail sentence and a fine of $50 in district court on bootlegging charges, will not serve the sentence after all. Judge Frank L. Riley asked the probation officer to investigate, and he found out the Lavalle had a wife and six children. And now instead of going to jail, he is going to work to support them.

BORAH CALLED TO TASK BY CHURCHILL

By F. A. WRAY

London, July 26 (I.N.S.)—Winston Spencer Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today called upon Senator William E. Borah of Idaho to "call his bluff."

Churchill demands that the Senator state definitely the basis for his charge that the British chancellor is conducting a "campaign of villification" against the United States.

Churchill issued the following statement:

"I invite the Senator to quote from any passage of any statement of mine upon which he relies for justification of such a complaint."

The statement by Borah attracted considerable attention in the London press today.

The Morning Post carries under a Washington date line a dispatch that declares: "Not a penny of the debt was ever canceled, as all that was done was to juggle the figures."

In the House of Commons today Sir Harry Britain and Captain Garre Jones inquired whether Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was coming to England to discuss the situation with Churchill.

Hemar Is a matter of policy I can not discuss," replied MacNeil.

GROVER CLEVELAND'S DAUGHTER MARRIES

Tamworth, N. H., July 26 (Universal) — Mrs. Marion Cleveland Dell, daughter of the late President Grover Cleveland, was married here to John Harlan Amen, son of the president of Exeter Academy. The ceremony was performed at Stevens Hill, the Summer home of Mrs. Frances Cleveland Preston, her mother, by the Rev. Purdee Erdman of California, assisted by the Rev. John H. Finley of New York.

The wedding was attended by only relatives and intimate friends of the couple.

WILL BAR PRIVATE LOANS

Will Support Mellon to the Limit in Policy on War Obligations

Paul Smith's, N. Y., July 26 (Universal).—Unmoved by the hostile demonstrations abroad, President Coolidge will insist that France pay her war debt under the $6,800,000,000 pact negotiated by Mellon and Berenger.

It can be stated with authority that the debt-cancellation movements both in France and this country have failed to make a dent upon the administration.

President Coolidge stands by the pact. He supports Secretary Mellon to the hilt in his controversy with Winston Churchill, British Chancellor of the Exchequer. He is determined that private loans shall be withheld until France comes to her senses and recognizes the integrity of her obligation to the United States.

STANDS FIRM.

President Coolidge long ago reasoned the British motion to have the Allied nations pool their debts to the United States. He insisted that every debt be compelled to stand upon its own feet and be measured by the capacity of each country to pay.

France, through her chosen representative, accepted the $6,800,000,000 pact.

If she repudiates this agreement, she might repudiate the next and each grant of new terms would be followed by processions of French missions here demanding more lenient terms, the President believes.

HUED AS AN ISSUE.

Following such a course, France would never get anywhere financially, the President believes. Until she has agreed upon the terms of settlement with the United States, she'd be unable to determine her financial status, balance her budget or revive her manufactures, the President is convinced.

The anti-American demonstrations will doubtless remove the French settlement as an anti-administration issue in the coming elections. Insurgents were preparing to attack the President for granting "too lenient" terms to France at the expense of the American taxpayer. Now France and England are calling him "Shylock." The net effect, it is expected, will be to consolidate American public sentiment in a demand for payment by France.

PLEA FOR REUNION FAILS, MAN KILLS WIFE, SELF

Charleston, W. Va., July 26.—Lee High, 31, shot and killed his wife and then himself as they sat on a bench while he was begging her to withdraw her divorce action and return to him. A letter found in his pocket asked that the revolver be returned to his brother from whom he had taken it without his brother knowing it.

Hurt by Lightning

Hightstown, N. J., July 26.—John Harrington, twelve, is expected to recover after having his clothes ripped off by a lightning bolt.

DEMPSEY'S OATH REMOVES FEAR OF NOSE BREAKAGE

KING SAYS PROBOSCIS IS BETTER

West Coast Physician Brings Action Against N. Y. Plastic Surgeon

By HERBERT WESTON.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, July 26.—Jack Dempsey's nose can take a punch 25 per cent. heavier than before it was "corrected." So swore William Harrison Dempsey, known in many places as "Jack," in an affidavit filed in the Supreme Court here.

The affidavit further set forth that the man who corrected and strengthened the champion's Irish pug into a Valentino nasal adornment was Dr. William E. Balsinger of Los Angeles, and not Dr. Luis D. Berne of New York.

The affidavit is attached to a summons and complaint filed by Rudolph Stand of No. 160 Broadway, attorney for Dr. Balsinger, asking an injunction to restrain Dr. Berne from claiming that he operated on Dempsey.

According to the papers filed, Dr. Berne took proboscis and all was widely printed throughout the country, that he had fixed up the champion proboscis of the world. This happened in March.

The condition of the champion's nose is thus for the first time made a matter of sworn record. There had been much speculation as to whether the champion's new prow could stand a crash from an six-ounce glove, backed by 200 pounds of Harry Wills or Gene Tunney. Those worthies were described as eager to lay a left jab to that which they thought was probably wax or celluloid or slivey or something.

Dr. Balsinger shatters their hopes in that respect. He insists the nose is all Dempsey's and a better and stronger Dempsey by 25 per cent., at that.

Heavyweight Bout Tangle Still Remains Unsoved

Chicago, July 26 (A.P.).—The tangle involving the plans of two rival promoters to stage a heavyweight championship fight here apparently finds only one man absolutely sure of himself—Jack Dempsey.

Tex Rickard, who suddenly became pessimistic last week over his chance of promoting his cherished Dempsey-Tunney mixup here on September 11, was more optimistic today, saying that "things are looking brighter," and that he might have "something to positively announce" before night.

Rickard sadly admitted three days ago that R. C. Clements, president of the Chicago Coliseum Club, did have a claim on Dempsey's services under a contract drawn in California last March and closed with a $10 bill. Now he is viewing the contract as a minor matter, after receiving additional advice from his attorneys.

Clements, however, says he will continue his plans for a Dempsey-Wills fray here in September and that he is prepared to hand the champion a juicy $300,000 first payment early in August.

The champion was bubbling over with confidence in his Colorado Springs quarters.

Dempsey, who was thirty-one last month, said he was not engaged in a title bout for three years, believed that he is good for many years in the ring and that he has the clean business of his faithful adherence to the doctrine of everlasting physical fitness.

BILL COUTU WILL PLAY DEFENSE ON BRUINS

Billy Coutu, of Les Canadiens, will play with the Boston Bruins next Winter if the plans for a trade with the Montreal French hockey team have been carried out.

It is reported that Lionel Hitchman will go to the Les Canadiens in exchange.

Why They Call 'Em Yankees

THE name "Yankees," now applied to the baseball team of the New York American League, is another newspaper title which owes its origin to popularity.

The club used to have a ball park on Washington Heights, and this situation gave rise to a variety of names drawing their inspiration from the lofty elevation of the environs.

They were called at various times the Highlanders and the Hilltoppers and perhaps a dozen more names of similar character.

Somewhere and sometime the term Yankees was inadvertently handed the New Yorkers. No sooner said than done. This handle had the quality which "took" and all of the others were discarded.

Scarcely had it come off the press than it was unanimously accepted, and the Yankees, or Yanks, have born this title gracefully ever since.

GOLFERS SET FOR TITLE TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES

Another strenuous week starts today for the golfers of New England, which runs through to Saturday. The Larry Paton Memorial tournament is underway at the Kenwood Country Club and the Newspapermen's Golf Association is holding forth at the Winchester Country Club.

Early Tuesday, the leading amateur of New England will head for the Rhode Island Country Club, where the New England Championships open with a 36-hole qualifying round on Wednesday after which match play will continue through Saturday when the first New England amateur champion will be crowned.

Regardless of the New England championships, there will be the usual time field at the "either or both" Plymouth and Scituate Country Clubs, which opens on Thursday.

This South Shore three-day open medal play handicap tournament is the best event of its kind in this country. Each year the field has increased and it is safe to say that more than 400 golfers will participate.

Each club is offering two gross and two net prizes, and there will be three gross and three net trophies for the combined scores.

There are some exceptionally fine pairs fighting for the Amateur-Pro championship at Kenwood today. This title was won by Jack Campbell of the Salem Golf Club and Burt Dezzie of Sandy Burr at the Hartford Country Club last year but this team will not be here to defend the title for Campbell has been quite practically all Spring and is not playing any golf.

Bill Blaney and Donald Vinton are the favorites. The fine pair from the Plymouth Country Club is shooting the finest golf of their career. Donald Vinton is the Massachusetts Open champion and he came within a stroke of tieing Dave Hackney for the New England professional title.

Bill Blaney is beginning to gain recognition as one of the grasiest golfers in the State. He made a fine showing in the State at Brae Burn, working his way to the semi-finals, where he was put out by F. C. Newton of the Country Club.

Without exception, the cream of New England will be at the Rhode Island Country Club fighting for the honor of being the first New England amateur champion.

Francis Oulmet, Jesse Guilford and Freddie Wright have decided to play through the qualifying rounds. Although this trio has the call for high honors, there work will be cut out for them if they expect to be the fastest field of "simon pures" ever gathered in a local champion ship.

Francis Oulmet should be the favorite. He has played but little golf in these parts this season and would be better than even Jesse Guilford will not want for backers. The Saige Gun is always dangerous but like Scituate he must be in the mood to show at his best.

Although golf is not anything but unusual in golf, it is doubtful if any player outside of Massachusetts has more than a look in for the title. The State champions, from Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island have entered but the opposition will run in from the Bay State.

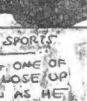
The pairings and starting times show that 24 will contest for the title. With the exception of Connecticut, the other States in the association came through nobly. The United States golf down and there will be only three representatives from Connecticut.

SKIPPERS DUE FOR BIG WEEK OF RACING

By GEORGE GRIMM.

South Boston, Marblehead and Edgartown will be the three seats of interest for the junior yachtmen along the Massachusetts coast starting today with the annual above-mentioned sailing sports having their elimination series of races for the sectional junior sailing championship.

Off City Point, South Boston, the younger sailing craft will compete in races under the auspices of the South Boston Y. C. for the South Shore junior championship.



George Grimm

Youngsters of the North Shore will compete for the title north of Boston in a series of races today, which are authorized by the regatta committee of the Eastern Yacht Club, while the third and final section of the State junior title elimination races will be held by the Edgartown Yacht Club for the Buzzards Bay and Cape Cod sectional honors.

At South Boston the youngsters are expected to compete with crews from the following clubs: Quincy, Wollaston, Squantum, Dorchester, Chelsea, Scituate, Hingham, South Boston and possibly one or two others. The yacht clubs of the North Shore, Marblehead and Edgartown, will start today and are expected, like all the other sectional races, to last for at least a couple of days' duration.

South Boston Y. C. regatta committee has a fleet of South Boston O Class boats for the junior racing with the regatta committee having made all arrangements for the carting of the competing crews.

This event last season was held by the Cohasset Yacht Club.

Under the direction of the Eastern Yacht Club, the North Shore junior sailing youngsters from Gloucester, Winthrop, Corinthian, Easter, Corinthian Park, Eastern Junior, Naham Dory, and Annisquam will compete in today's elimination series.

BOSTON ENTRY FAVORITE IN TERRAPIN CLASSIC

Bliss, Okla., July 26.—Captain Nykes, dark horse entry in the world's championship terrapin race and owned by Thomas Horgan of Boston, has been working out daily at [illegible] race track of the Jill Kreich here for the last week or so.

Following the arrival of the Horgan entry, bookmakers revised odds, although the Boston entry still stands 10 to 1. A group of Osage Indians from the Osage Hill reserve, has indicated that the sleek Captain Sykes is the best Terra Cog in the labor Day classic. The Horgan terrapin has a record of having walked across the circular mark with proper apparent effort, but one minute behind all competitors, the record of last years derby winner, "Dynamite."

JOHN BRAY SHOWS WAY TO GUS WISE

Hundreds of bathers saw the end of the three-mile swimming match between the veterans, John Bray and Gus Wise, at the Lafrest Baths. The match was the culmination of a friendly rivalry that has existed for a great many years, and 62-year-old John Bray outrooted and decisively defeated his 48-year-old adversary by at least a quarter of a mile, or 18 minutes actual time.

The men struck out from Lafrest for the end of the pumping station and not in the mere piling up of victories."

The fact that Harvard sports have been run by Harvard alumni, often with the mere accumulation of victories as the main objective, is well known. Thos in the know will tell you that the "merits system" has had little vogue in Cambridge. This is paradoxical.

If the alumni wish victorious teams and at the same time sift their squads through the social register, they are defeating their own aims with dispatch and remarkable lack of foresight.

Future of Harvard's Sports Rests With Alumni Body

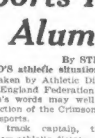
By STED CHANDLER

HARVARD'S athletic situation again comes to the fore with the firm stand taken by Athletic Director William J. Bingham in his speech to the New England Federation of Harvard Clubs at Bowdoin College.

Bingham's words may well be examined closely. Upon them and upon the reaction of the Crimson graduate body to them hinges the future of Harvard sports.

Bingham, track captain, track coach, and now athletic dictator, has accepted the difficult task of guiding the Cambridge thistle destinies with a background rich in the experience which is necessary for the successful achievement of his ideals.

His utterances at Bowdoin show that he has chosen the most direct, and at the same time the most dangerous route to his goal. The path will be beset by obstacles. The important point is whether or not he, with Harvard, can successfully navigate the treacherous channel.



Sted Chandler

THERE have been too many graduates trying to run our teams from their offices in Boston," he declared, "but that day is gone so long as I am director of athletics.

The graduates will have to stand solidly behind me during the term of years of defeat before I will feel convinced that they are sincerely interested in the welfare of athletics

The fact that Harvard, with its wealth of athletes to Harvard, the influence of athletics on thes tudents themselves and the amusement and satisfaction to the alumni running a poor third.

It is the only attitude which can work the salvation of the Crimson's hopes and ideals on the fields of sports. But will it be accomplished?

CARNIVAL FOR SWIM STARS AT SALEM

The City of Salem Board of Park Commissioners is to hold a monster amateur swimming carnival at Salem Willows Park, Salem on Saturday afternoon, July 31, at 3 o'clock. Win Marling, who is in charge of the big swim meet, is in hopes of gathering the cream of the New England swimming stars to perform in the numerous events.

The race committee has the planed entry blanks of Katherine Meola, her sister Helen, Rena McDonald of the Boston Swimming Association and Margaret Sheehy of Whitinsville.

The New England A. A. A. U. championship events have been awarded to the Park Commission by the Swimming Committee of the N. E. A. A. U. One will be the 220 yards senior breast stroke for women, while the other is the 100 yards N. E. A. A. U. junior free style championship for men.

A third feature of the program will be 100 yards free style Essex County championship swim for men, open to residents of Essex County for at least six months, prior to this meet.

A special 100 yards open handicap race will be held for the women swimmers and another race for the men, being the 220 yards open back stroke.

The swimming committee of the Salem Board of Park Commissioner includes Oliver G. Pond, chairman, Dr. Johnson Marling, Mayor Percy B. Prince, John J. Glynn and Margaret Sheedy. Entries for the meet close with W. Johnson Marlin, No. 22 Atlantic avenue, Beverly.

Dempsey, Fearful, Hits Championship Pace

THIS is the thirteenth chapter of Jack Kearns' thrilling story in which he replies to the charges of Jack Dempsey. It is the first time that the man who put Jack Dempsey on the pugilistic map tells of his experience when he was a prize fighter. Read this story every day in the Boston Evening American.

By JACK KEARNS

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

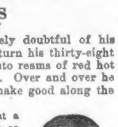
DEMPSEY seemed worried and extremely doubtful of his fighting ability and when I began to turn his thirty-eight second knockout victory over Al Norton into reams of red hot copy, he harped on the subject continually. Over and over he told me he wasn't a fighter and couldn't make good along the lines I was claiming in the ballyhoo.

"Kid, don't you worry. I've seen you fight a couple of times now and you're the goods. Do as well as you've done and you're the next champion of the world. I mean it!"

"You can't miss. Why, you can whip that big yokel, Willard, right this minute!"

Dempsey would look at me with his eyes searching for the laugh. He thought it was coming sooner or later, but I never weakened on the idea that he'd make the grade to the big title. He soon surprised me in his improvement.

I began to bill him as the next heavyweight champion of the world. That was the goal now, and Dempsey, despite his protests, was carried along on the tide of publicity. I think he really was frightened. The thing had got too big for him. He feared the publicity more than he did the fights I was planning.



Jack Kearns

McAllister Ballyhoo Bears Fruit

Naturally when I had him up there, he had to go on, and sat as naturally they began to look around for somebody to whip him. "Get Dempsey speared." That began to be the cry. Kearns has a good one and they must get him spanked.

Bob McAllister, a clever light heavyweight, had licked everybody on the Pacific coast about this time, and he added to his reputation by invading the East. He had just come back from a victory over Tom McMahon, the fellow who had licked Willard before the big fellow had won the title.

McAllister had been amateur heavyweight champion of the Pacific coast and a great favorite at the Olympic Club in San Francisco, where his pals and backers were billing him as a second Jim Corbett.

The promoters were swarmed all over Mac. McAllister was the fellow to meet Dempsey, and it was predicted the pair would draw thousands of dollars. No match frightened me for I wanted to give Dempsey the old acid test.

I created the impression, for publicity purposes, that I really did

Braves Open Series With Cubs Tomorrow

By NICK FLATLEY

BOSTON fans, worn to rags by constant attendance at tough ball games, have a vacation this afternoon, and can assimilate some sunshine and good nature without the chance of suffering also. The Braves are on the way back from their Cincinnati, after a sad western trip, and don't open at the Wigwam until tomorrow. The Sox meanwhile are headed toward the far parts.

The Braves hold forth against the West at their big orchard until August 11. They take on the Cubs for a benner and then take on the Reds for five games in four days. The Pirates follow along, with six or seven tilts billed for the four afternoons of their visit, and the Cards wind it up with a three game series.

Nick Flatley

The Braves have no place in particular to go in the National race, but they can get out of the cellar. The Cubs have been suggering about as badly as the Braves, and Boston's spurt of any sort will move the gang into seventh place.

* * * *

IT was the start of the last western stand at home that made the fans believe the Braves were arriving. The Bancrofts won four in a row from the Reds and then took three out of four from the Cubs. The burnettes were beginning to grind merrily when the Cardinals broke into the picture and romped off with a pair of double headers. And that ended climb and hope and everything else.

The Warriors have one new athlete to show the populace, Eddie Moore, late of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Eddie, a star in the last world series, is a good ball player. He was in wrong in Pittsburgh, and never could get himself feeling friendly toward Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the champions.

The Pirates wanted to send Eddie to the minors, but the other clubs wouldn't stand for it. Waivers were asked several times, and the other team in the league refused to waive. Then the offers were withdrawn.

Moore was classified, had trouble with Manager McKechnie, and was finally waived to the Braves. The club being in last place, had first shot at him. Perhaps that's why the boys stuck in the cellar.

* * * *

MOORE can play ether at second base or in the outfield. He subbed while Max Carey was hurt last year and was developing into a star fly chaser, when Maxey returned to the game. He looked like a million dollars in he big Wigwam garden, and we imagine Manny will try him out there now.

Moore is a fine natural hitter, and with experience, can be handled easily enough. He's moody when slumping, but a few pats on the back can bring him to. He should be a very valuable man to the natives, who need his punch and experience.

Tunney Confident He Will Be Champ

New York, July 26 (A.P.).—The Marines told it to Gene Tunney something like seven years ago, when he was the champion of them all as a boxer in France, and he hasn't forgotten.

The hope and confidence of his "buddies," expressed back in 1919, that he would some day reach the pinnacle of the fighting heap is now the biggest of all incentives for the man picked by Tex Rickard to battle Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship of the world at Chicago in September.

The spirit of the A. E. F. is still strong in Tunney of the Marines. It stood out boldly as the background of the story of his career, his experiences and his ambitions, as he described them for the Associated Press in an interview that kept him "in the ring" for an hour.

It was with the Marines that Tunney first learned to fight, with implements of war as well as with the four-ounce gloves. At heart he is still a campaigner, and, soldier like, he is disciplining himself for another battle.

PLANS FIGHTS FIRST.

"You know I always fight my battles out beforehand," said Tunney. "I mean by that I plan and live through them by myself, figuring but my opponent's and my own attack and defense. That's the reason I like the quiet and solitude of the woods for my training.

"It haven't any worries or doubts, but if I had I could banish them quickly by the thought of how little harm my opponent's punches can do as compared with a spray of machine-gun bullets. I can take the punches."

"Dempsey? He's the champion, of course, but except for the atmosphere and the knowledge that this is my biggest chance so far, it won't seem a great deal different from any other important fight.

"I have always been confident that some day I would be the champion and I wouldn't be telling the truth if I didn't admit feeling confident now."

An easy-going disposition tops off Tunney's characteristics, lack of aggressiveness, some of his critics have called it, but he can become aroused if need be. A fact he proved when the interviewer touched on the topic of shifting the battleground of his expected match with Dempsey from New York to Chicago.

WANTS BOUT IN N. Y.

Much as Tunney has been eager to get a chance to meet Dempsey anywhere. It is a keen disappointment to him that the biggest fight in his career will not take place in New York.

"There is neither fairness nor justice to that," Tunney holds. "New York is my home and the home of most of my friends and followers. I was born and raised in Greenwich Village. In every other place I've ever heard of the home town product gets at least an even break, but Chairman Farley contends I can't box the champion here.

"I've fought and beaten most of the leading heavyweights in the past few years, knowing out Gibbons, who stayed the limit with Dempsey, and Madden, who lasted fifteen rounds with Willie Remember, also, that Wills refused Rickard's offer for a match with me last Fall. If that doesn't put me in the logical contender class I don't know how to get there."

Thus Tunney states his case, but he is not letting this interfere with the long campaign of preparation that now has put the goal in sight. He was asked to turn back to his earlier days, tell how he started in the boxing game and gained his high place of prominence.

FOUGHT WITH MARINES.

"I got the idea of becoming a boxer after I joined the Marines," said the challenger. "I had never put on the gloves until I reached training camp, where boxing was a compulsory part of the work. I was only nineteen then, but quickly took to the game. Before long I was able to make it interesting for even the instructor, but my ambition was [illegible] when I went overseas in March, 1918. Our outfit was assigned to the Metz sector. We saw things through there. After the Armistice, athletics were organized, boxing became a major sport and I put on the gloves again.

"In succession I won the championship of my regiment, camp and of the Marines as a whole, defeating Ted Jamieson of Milwaukee in the final bout. Later, for a special match, I defeated Bob Martin, who had gained the A. E. F. title.

"My progress had been rapid, but up to this time I knew little or nothing about professional training methods. My first tutoring along this line came from an old-timer, Joe Gorman, and the instructions of following boxing as a profession with the exception of Connecticut, the other States in the association came through nobly. The United States golf down and there will be only three representatives from Connecticut.

Tunney's Pre-Bout Views

"I always fight my battles beforehand.

"Fighting Dempsey won't be different from other fights.

"There is neither fairness nor justice in making me fight in Chicago. New York I say home . . . and the home product should get at least an even break.

"I am familiar with Dempsey's methods . . . it would be foolish to say how I'll fight the Champion—but I won't be on the defensive.

"Boxing has given me the opportunity to do and see things and to meet people.

"I hope to make enough to settle down . . . to live like normal people.

A movement is afoot to shorten the present pitching distance to 55 feet 6 inches. This would mean a reduction of five feet

Let us consider the food question. Do you spend your money for a return in nourishment and health or simply for the satisfaction of appetite?

Do you judge the worth of food by the cost or by the way it builds you up and keeps you fit?

Are you spending too much or too little for food?

Are you spending too much meat, too many eggs, too dessert, too expensive and out of season foods?

Have you simplified buying, cooking and service just as much as possible without sacrificing health and comfort?

Do you figure out the per cent you spend for each meal, and on each week's food account?

Do you count meat as the central food?

Do you use enough milk?

Can you omit from your menus in order to purchase the amount of milk, fruit and leafy vegetables which we know are desirable for every family.

Now, about Operating. Have you ever sat down and analyzed just what it costs to run your home?

Do you know whether you are spending the minimum or maximum amount for operating in proportion to your income?

Are you adding to your house keeping comforts rapidly means operating expenses far higher, more seriously than is consistent with the kind of house and the quality of [illegible] which your income will comfortably provide?

If you are living this way, is it through necessity on account of the health of some member of your family, or because it seems necessary to keep up certain standards for business reasons? Or have you simply drifted into this careless attitude regarding spending expenses?

What are your standards for service? What a little help do you have, for instance?

If you are a house owner with a water bill to pay, do you waste water through neglecting dripping or leaking faucets or by the careless use of running water? Are you careful to use lights only when you need them?

Are you careful to use electric bulbs with just as low wattage as will give the necessary light? For instance, ten watt bulbs in the back hall, cellar and closets?

Are you careless with your gas for cooking? In the Winter, do you control your fires so as to conserve coal are you careless with the dampers?

Have you found out from your coal dealer what size coal is best adapted for your stoves or furnace?

Do you keep your fire at the top of the [illegible] of the fire box or do you waste coal by filling the fire box too full?

CHAPTER XXXV.

(Copyright, 1926, Johnson Features, Inc.)

MERRY came home at nightfall with her eyes softly shining, and a bunch of drooping violets pinned on the front of her dress.

She hummed a gay little tune to herself, as she unlocked the front door, and ran upstairs to the room that she shared with Jinny.

As Mary opened the door, Jinny glanced up and her pointed little face sparkled with anger.

"Sweet trick you played on me this noon, wasn't it?" she asked. "Leaving me flat without a cent for a bite of lunch just to go racing off with that friend I declare, Mary, you seem to go out of your mind whenever there's a man in sight."

Merry was in no mood for a quarrel. She was far too happy to do anything but smile and shrug her shoulders.

It had been a beautiful afternoon. After she and Cabby had lunch, they had gone for a long drive out toward Worcester. Then they had . . . bought her the violets and some tea at the Copley-Plaza.

Not only that, but he had made a "date" with her for next Wednesday night! And life was beginning to open its petals and bloom for her again, like a flower slowly opening on a motion picture screen.

For life, to interest Merry Locke, had to have a man and a thrill in it, somewhere. She was not what less alluring women would call "a man's woman."

"Oh, I've had such a wonderful time!" she sighed happily, taking off her crush hat but not the violets. "Didn't you think Cabby Marsh was wonderful looking?"

"I don't see what you see in a man before you start bein' a man's wife," answered the outraged Jinny, who secretly thought him extremely handsome and would liked to see more of him.

"Cassie's here," she added, as an after-thought. "She and Moms have been closed up in the parlor for an hour, and they wouldn't let me in—I suppose Cassie's hinging some more griet about Morley."

Ten minutes afterward when Merry went down to the kitchen the door was standing open, however Moms was moving around, getting supper. Cassie, with a handker chief pressed to her eyes, was sitting at the tab.e.

"Married life isn't what it was 30 years ago—I know that!" Moms was saying, apparently in answer to something Cassie had just said. "Women used to stay home and mind their business and have their babies, those days. They didn't have time to go around making eyes at other women's husbands . . . This Mrs. Pell has two children," Cassie retorted in a muffled voice.

"Well, what about you?" her mother asked briskly. "You haven —And that's where you make your biggest mistake, my girl! What's marriage between a man and a . . . It isn't marriage at all, but something very, very different."

Cassie shook her beautifully waved head.

"Women have different ideas than they used to have, Moms," she replied, in a choked voice. "They're not content to stand around in calico aprons with a baby tucked under each arm any more—No, this city dancer I have with Morley is to keep myself young and fresh and full of zing."

"Full of nonsense, you mean," Moms answered, out of patience. "There are always going to be pretty, young, 'snappy' women, as you call them, around Morley. But one woman can't keep a man's wife and the mother of his children . . . and where would you be today if I'd lived my life the way you're living yours? You'd never have been born, that's all!"

"Sometimes I wish I never had been!" Cassie sobbed out, and that was the signal for Merry.

For as she put her head down on the table and cried, Moms came to her. She put her big arms around Cassie a slender, shaking figure and held her tight.

Cassie Looked Up Then in Alarm and Shook Her Head

"Don't take it so hard, my lamb." Merry heard her whisper . . . That was Moms for you! Always understanding because life had been unkind and made her so. But sweet and comforting as a guardian angel when anyone needed sweetness and comforting.

Merry did not know that she had been her come in and stand by the door, but she had, for she turned now and beckoned silently to her.

"Here's Merry, Cassie," she said quietly. "Shell stay here and get supper for Jinny and Lilla Dale—and I'll go home with you to Morley. It's time somebody did a thing or two to that gentleman!"

But Cassie looked up in alarm and shook her head.

"Oh, no, I won't let you say a word to him!" she cried. "I'll not let him know I care about this whole thing! Let him have all of Wifi Pell that he wants to—I'm going to leave him!"

She got up and wadded her dainty handkerchief into the pocket of her smart sports dress.

"No, indeed!" she said firmly, "I wouldn't let Morley Kaufman know that I care that much for him! I don't even ask him where he's been, when he comes home at 10 or 11 o'clock every night of his life. The first complaint he'll get from me will be from my lawyer! I'm going away for a couple of weeks, and when I get back—that's all! I'm through!"

She marched into the hall, put on her hat and coat and went out to the car.

"Come over tomorrow morning, and help me pack," she called to Merry, who stood watching her from the doorway.

When she had vanished into the gray darkness, Merry went slowly back to the kitchen.

"What I can't figure out," she said to her mother, "is whether Cassie minds losing Morley or his money. What do you think about it?"

"I don't know," Moms answered, lifting a pan from the stove, "but let me give you a piece of advice.

"Don't ever marry a man for his money. Don't ever get married until it seems to be the only thing that's worth while in the world. That's the only safe rule that I know."

"Did you care for Dad that way when you married him?" Merry asked her mother.

Her mother raised her heavy eyebrows.

"Did I?" she repeated. "Did I? Why, of course I did! Do you suppose I could have ever stood the work and the worry and the poverty, and all the rest of it, if I hadn't? Your father was enough to drive any woman crazy, with his shiftlessness. It was his only fault, but it was a terrible one."

Her face seemed to tighten. "If I ever marry again," she remarked, without meeting her daughter's eyes, "I shall pick out a man who's a good provider."

"Jinny and I Bumped Into Him Down Town Today"

Merry giggled to herself . . . It was impossible to think of Moms ever marrying again. She couldn't imagine Moms attracting any man much less falling in love, herself! There was about as much romance in Moms as there was in a stern shovel . . . In Merry's opinion, at least.

"You'll never marry again," she said aloud, and went on to tell Moms about her own brand-new love affair.

"I met this Marsh man through Morley's sister, Muriel," she said. "He was frantic about me from the minute he shook hands with me. But of course, Muriel wouldn't let him get within a mile of me—She did not mention the kiss he had given her at the Crew's feet. It never would do to let Moms know that she had let a man kiss her the first time she saw him . . . the last time, either, as far as that went!

"Well, anyway Jinny and I bumped into him down town today, her light voice went on like a brook. 'And didn't he ask us to lunch with him, very first thing?'

"HE DID NOT!" Jinny fairly boomed from the doorway. "You asked him to take you and you ditched me to go with him! You're a fine sister, you are!"

Moms held up a warning hand. "Hush, girls!" she said, looking from one face to the other, "I will not have this continual fussing—" She shook her head.

As a matter of fact, Merry and Jinny did very little quarreling. And when they did, their spats were soon over and forgotten.

"Tonight, before the dishes were done, they were the best friends in th world again.

"Saturday night! Let's break loose and go to the movies. What do you say?" Merry asked, as she rinsed the last of the pots and pans. "I'll treat!"

Merry drew her salary on Saturday, and she knew she had plenty of money until Tuesday—or possibly Wednesday.

"Oh, boy! Oh, joy!" sang Jinny. She hung up her dishtowel and clattered out of the kitchen, whistling "It Had to Be You,' as she vanished . . .

It was 10 o'clock when they got home. The house was in darkness except for a dim light in the lower hall.

"That's funny," Merry observed, as they came up the front walk. "Do you suppose Moms went over to Cassie's, after all? It certainly doesn't look as if she's home, does it?"

They went into the house, Moms was not in it, but there was a note pinned to the kitchen table . . .

Jinny picked it up and glanced at it.

"Holy cow!" she cried, her brown eyes like saucers. "Where do you suppose she's gone? To the movies with Mr. Heffinger?"

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Jinny and Merry listen in on Moms and Mr. Heffinger. Cassie's troubles seem to end in Chapter 35 of "Tarnished Wings," tomorrow.

Girls, Why Cheapen Your Heritage? -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

The Petter May Be Popular.

But When It Comes to Marrying,

Particularly with Certain Fellows.

He Seeks a More Demure Miss

"EVERY one pets nowadays" is a comment you are likely to hear. But everyone doesn't pet promiscuously. And many who do, find degraded, as the following tends to prove.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I have been a student of human nature ever since I was a high school boy. I know the young man's views regarding the girl who pets.

"Deep down in hi sheart he despises her. When he begins to think of settling down he looks for a girl who has not been mandandled.

"This does not mean that young men do not like to go about with a girl who pets—they do. Soon, however, a man turns to a girl he respects and looks up to, who knows how to say 'No!'

"What, then, happens to the girl he petted? He forgets her. Or if he doesn't forget, he can only think of her with a smile—of either pity or contempt.

"I don't say young men are not to blame for the recklessness of girls. They are. If they didn't go round looking for petting girls—

"Millions of people know my face," he said, shows reserving self-possession. "I might have to stay here a long time before I could dare venture beyond your door. The whole world will be looking for me today."

"They'll never look for you here" Kelvin lowered at her, his dark eyes puzzled with amazement at the vagor of her willingness to help him. "It's funny," he said slowly, with all the friends I have—our think of me here—for you . . . would do a thing to help me in such a case, and yet I seem to known each other—forever.

Something mysteriously vibrating glowed upon Joslyn, transfigured her whole slender symmetrically being, exalted her flushed face. The starry eyes gleamed. "I'm going to do whatever is necessary—I'm going to stand by you James Kelvin . . . to the limit!"

Joslyn Fought for Strength; Kelvin Looked With Baffled Eyes

Joslyn fought for strength for calmness. "You can't stay here Surely you must see that."

Kelvin looked at her with baffled, hunted eyes. "You won't take me in?" he asked bewilderedly.

"I can t! Why—oh why—did you come here?"

"I couldn't go any place else—I'd have been recognized and arrested Your address was fresh in my mind I'd just found out from that Lane girl your street and number I had meant to write or telephone you or send you flowers. I'm not lying—I am—simply crazy about you, Joslyn. That's why I lost my head like I did. I didn't mean to kill him—it was a wild blow in self-defense. But a fury wouldn't believe it. And when the crash came I . . . my only instinct was to flee to where I knew you'd be. . . ."

The halting explanation was without any note of pleading; it was, simply, a nerve-jangled statement of fact.

Joslyn looked at the drawn, pallid face and her dreamy eyes widened, grew darkly luminous. Steadily, the heavy beating of her heart was beginning to warm and flood her nerves and body with a tremulous, vibrant ing tenderness. Before she realized it her eyes were filled with tears.

Kelvin looked at her miserably. "It's all right, Joslyn," he said despondently. "I'll clear out—don t let me get your goat. After all it was my party—and I'll pay. At that, I guess it really wouldn't mean the chair—I'd get off with a prison sentence and a farewell kick out of the movie game. I guess I can stand it."

In escaping from Batas' apartment he had left his coat and had behind, yet from ingrained habit he glanced around the room as though to gather up those articles. In Joslyn's consciousness the stunning fact that he was going to surrender . . . to death perhaps . . . almost stifled breathing.

Emotion, burning and delirious, as irrepressible as forked lightning, shocked like a tearing current through her overwrought nerves. Out of some secret, unfathomable depths wildly excited words were forced to her lips.

"Give you up to the police . . . not in a thousand years If I must as much to you as you say I do—Oh, don t worry I'll keep you right here in this apartment with me . . . I'll . . . world. . . .

"I'll . . . "

"Nonsense . . . you . . . against for a . . .

"Nothing . . . about . . . earth, now. We're marooned here, Joslyn, dear. It's just the same as having you on a deserted island—can you imagine it, dear? On a deserted island—with you yet were in the heart of New York!

His eyes were shining with a enthusiastic fervor. Joslyn's pulse began to throb wildly. Romance, bewildering and intoxicating, burst in her heart in one ecstatic throb . . . and dazzling stars . . .

"On a deserted island . . . with you," he continued. "We'd be so close to her, his voice shortening "I wish, dear, how I love you! Nothing else matters down counting . . . a glowing in love down . . . Whatever . . .

"Oh, I love you . . . I love you . . . I love you . . .

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

HUNDREDS of families are solving the servant problem by inviting guests to their homes on Saturday and Sunday. It is a wonderful way to get your house work done over the week-end.

ONE woman lets all of her dishes go from Monday until Friday night and then makes the company wash them on Saturday.

SHE also clears a little money on the side by charging them for anything they break.

SHE buys her cuts and scraps at wholesale rates and makes the guests pay for them at retail prices.

ONE poor fellow was so careless with the crockery that he ran up a bill of $37.

HE arrived in the afternoon and the next morning he had to go into bankruptcy.

WHEN he couldn't pay for what he broke, the hostess held his baggage.

HE said it was the first time he'd ever gone visiting C. O. D.

HE says he's not going to accept any more invitations [illegible] can go calling on deferred payments.

IT'S getting so that a man can't go away over the week-end without taking his lawyer with him.

Dempsey Fearful, Hits Championship Pace

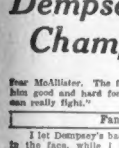
fear McAllister. The fellows who didn't care to boost Dempsey panned him good and hard for being "afraid to meet McAllister, a fellow who can really fight."

Fans Voice Fear for Dempsey

I let Dempsey's backers and his knockers wrangle themselves blue in the face, while I played "straight." I drummed it up, good. I made wild demands, and the wilder they were the louder came the roars that I was afraid to turn Dempsey loose with McAllister.



Jack Dempsey

When the row was at fever heat and I was the most unpopular manager in the world, I took the match and crossed up the outfit. Then what happened? The same fellows who were bellowing for the match now rushed around to tell me that I had overplayed my kid and would surely get his block knocked off.

"Too bad, Kearns, they said in pitiful tones. "Dempsey is a great prospect, but he's not ready for McAllister yet."

They fought, the great Bob McAllister and Dempsey, and Robert took one of the worst beatings I ever saw a fighter get. The "sure thing" players got their fingers burned plenty that night.

It made me very cocky and I blasted the bally furiously. Things were breaking for me now and Dempsey didn't get a chance to think it over. He was rolling with the tidal wave.

Kearns Opens Hunt for Champ

I went to the promoters and insisted that Dempsey had proved my baby was on the dead level.

"Go get the best fighter you can find in the country," was my daily.

"There's no use of my trying to coax Willard into the ring with this fellow. He's afraid of Dempsey even since he's cut off.

"Don't kid yourself that he hasn't heard about him. Try and get him to sign with Jack. It's a laugh. But if they ever meet, put this down on your silk cuff, Dempsey will knock him off."

So I began the hunt to get somebody to lick Dempsey. They didn't care who it was so long as Dempsey got bumped.

That's a peculiar trait among promoters. They get themselves scared and then they try to get him bumped off. I guess you'll have to let it go as human nature. It was no different in Dempsey's case. He was up there and they wouldn't be happy until they got somebody to knock him over.

They became convinced that it would take a pure and simple hitter to beat Jack, and I welcomed the thought inwardly, for I know that of all fighters Dempsey could "take" a hitter every time. He could beat a hitter to the punch. The fellows that might have ducked were the clever fellows.

They sprang their man on me. I was expected to faint dead away, but when they told me they had lined up Gunboat Smith, hardest hitter of his day, I laughed and said that would be bully. Again the calamity criers came to me with warnings about putting the kid in too deep.

Spider Kelly Worries Over Match

The match was made without my batting an eye. The Gunner was the baby who would make or break Jack and I was willing to take the gamble. So was Dempsey. I give him credit.

I dug up my life-long pal, Spider Kelly, and asked him to come over and work with Jack for me on the kid. The Spider is one of the greatest teachers and seconds that ever lived. He joined the camp and we stood watching Dempsey work.

"Well, I've not seen him get a good one yet," said the Spider. "None of those fellows you have here can reach him, that's sure. They don't hit like the Gunner, so don't be kidding yourself that he can take it. He might be able to take it, but what will he do after he gets socked?" That could only be answered in the ring.

Tomorrow Kearns tells how he and "Spider" Kelly worried over Dempsey's ability to "take it" from "Gunboat" Smith.

SEN. WELLS IS 'FULLER' AT CHEYENNE

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

President Wellington Wells of the Massachusetts State Senate, is in Cheyenne, Wyo. today, representing Governor Alvan T. Fuller at the Governors' Conference. Governor Fuller dislikes his fine Summer place at Rye, N. H., about as much as he does Packard motors, but will blame him a bit, having appreciated Wells' Rye and its delightful surroundings for the Governor.

Wells' term of office expires with the election in November, and he is said to be the Democratic candidate for the Governorship against Governor Fuller, who is a Republican. Whittier sang of Rye and Hampton — you can see both beaches and the Isles of Shoals as well from the Fuller mansion.

Wellington Wells also Summers in Southern New Hampshire but at Chesham, about 100 miles west of Rye. Previously in this column we have stated that the Wells farm is said to be the finest in New Hampshire. When we last met Senator Wells at the Copley-Plaza, we heard —but not from him—that he was slated for the gubernatorial chair on Beacon Hill.

A lot of foolish things are written in the names of investment and the Money Gods who rule Wall Street.

George E. Roberts, vice-president of the National City Bank, prominent economist, says in discussing remedies proposed for the failing franc: "Chiefly the budget must be balanced. The national and Massachusetts budgets are balanced without or less care. They have prevented us from going the way France has gone. It is a pity most of our towns and cities spend money as lives the butterfly, with thought, if any, for today only. Instead of these reckless communities will learn that they who Charleston must pay for the music.

• • •

Senator Wells is an authority on the Fifty-first Legislature, and I do about thoughtless spending by towns and cities.

Speculators do not regard Judge E. H. Gary's impending retirement as a bullish card on U. S. Steel. The judge's retirement is viewed from a depth of the stock like another sword of Damocles.

Judge Gary

"U. S. Steel meeting scheduled for Tuesday of this week." A little financial note, length of sentence alone considered, but significance, however, to speculators. The concern's well-informed opinion is that nothing especially good is expected to transpire from it. And, if anything good is given out, the present price of the stock settled pates it fully.

George Bernard Shaw, the author, is reported as being quite calm about work not. There are the Wall and some of these articles may be 75 mark who are still native in the harness.

Conrad W. Crocker, who represented Edmund D. Codman in the latter's opposition before the Interstate Commerce Commission to Boston & Maine application to assume new securities under the readjustment plan, has notified the commission and the parties in interest of his intention to appeal the decision of Division 4 approving the plan. Mr. Crocker was in favor of the road, was rejected by Division 4, consisting of Commissioners Aitchison, Eastman and Woodlock, and it is understood that the latter will file a dissenting opinion in which to appeal to the full commission.

Wall Street writer says: The 1926 series of baseball results reminds me that one Boston banking house is in it smembership two famous nicknames, one of a quarter century ago, the other of yesterday. Both have each other inthe college classes of the day. F. L. Higginson was captain of the Harvard baseball team and E. W. Allen was captain of the Yale team of the same year, when that yard work. Both men were rewarded captains the following year.

Unfortunately f or a good story Higginson suffered a broken leg shortly before the game and did not row inthe race which Allen's crew won. And thus there began out ofthis college rivalry a friendship which has grown with the years into a business association of the two men in the eventual addition of Allen to the directorate of the Higginson & Co. of which "Peter" Higginson was and ready a partner.

• • •

Allen made a striking record in the business world, coming to the banking house of Higginson & Co. Later he became president of the Shawmut National Bank in New York. Combining with Higginson he saw opportunities opening in the new aeronautical field and so informed him. He resigned his position and became a leading figure in the development of college rowing days which did it.

RED SOX PLAY LONE CONTEST WITH MACKS

Philadelphia, July 26. — Connie Mack's pennant seekers will play a one-game series with the Red Sox here today. Occasionally the elephantine Giant infield has tamed Harold Wilbur, the blond southpaw, will tend to create much disturbance when the Athletics are on the hill for the visitors today.

Young Wilbur is probably the most dependable member of the Red Sox staff. Lefty Graves, who looks like the best hurler that ever pitched a ball game in the big league every time the Yankees come to town, has been off his form of late, however.

Local scribes personally think that Lefty would break all strikeout records if he could only work against the league-leading Yanks each day. Meanwhile, the Invaders are all prepared to solve his assortment of puzzling shots.

The Athletics have not shown any real sport yet, but when they come they will come fast.

"DOLLAR FUR CLUB" NOW HAS ENTIRE FLOOR

TO MEET GROWING DEMANDS

Scott, Furriers, Inc., are devoting added space in the building, No. 43 Winter street, to the fur coat business. Salesrooms, offices and workshop are provided for on this floor.

NEW SCOTT FUR ROOMS OPEN

The success and growth of Scott, Furriers, Inc., has resulted in the opening of an entire floor in the new building at No. 43 Winter street, which will be devoted exclusively to the handling of their business—salesroom, offices and work shop.

The new location is four times the size of the old. Beautiful fixtures, private offices for customers as well as unusual lighting makes this one of the most up to date fur shops in Boston.

Scott, Furriers, Inc., have introduced a novel plan in fur selling known as "The Dollar Fur Club," making it possible with a down payment as low as $1 to enroll as a member, with further payments at such times and of such amounts as are convenient to the purchaser.

An unusual feature of the club is that Scott, Furriers, Inc., pay interest at 6 per cent on all payments made up to the time that the coat is taken by the purchaser. This plan, therefore, sets not only as a savings, but makes it easier to own a fur coat when the time comes to wear one.

Any woman in New England is eligible to the "Dollar Fur Club" and the response already received has exceeded the fondest expectations of the owners of the business.

FENWAY HAS FINE PROGRAM

The new film, "The Social Highwayman," opened at the Fenway Saturday and held up audiences to gales of laughter at the stimulating exploits of a newspaper reporter, a bandit and an heiress.

This picture, written by Darryl Francis Zanuck and directed by William Beaudine, shows once again the skill of Constance Talmadge with comic situations. John Patrick, as the newsgatherer, who turns bandit in order to capture a notorious robber, is gay and amusing, and piquant Dorothy Devore again pleases as an exceedingly appealing heroine. Montague Love gives an excellent performance as the highwayman and the rest of the cast is equally well chosen.

As companion feature on the double bill, Ernest Torrence and William Collier, Jr., are seen in Gerald Beaumont's "The Rainmaker" Starring Wednesday "The Wilderness Woman," with Allen Pringle and Chester Conklin, and "Out of the Storm" with Jacqueline Logan will be shown.

WEE PATIENTS GO CRUISING IN HARBOR

Every day and evening this week, with the exception of Tuesday and Friday nights, the Boston Floating Hospital will carry a full load of little patients on a cruise about the harbor. The trips are made possible through the donations of generous Bostonians, many in memory of their children.

Today's daylight trip is given by Gertrude Howard Whitwell with the evening sail is made possible by Mrs. Gertrude Hunton Sweet, in memory of Albert K. and Mary J. Hunton.

TRANSCONTINENTAL HAS 5000-BARREL TEXAS WELL

Transcontinental Oil Co. has completed its second well on the Bigger Creek structure near Mexia, Texas, its Cochran No. 1, which is estimated making initial flow of 5,000 barrels. It is an offset to Rosson No 1, the discovery well, completed a short while ago.

On account of our ever daily increasing sales volume, we are in need of 4 high grade salesmen to take over some new territory. This is a wonderful opportunity for the men we select and will surely be one of the most remunerative sales-positions. The market for Electric Refrigerators such as Kelvinator has built since 1924 is unlimited. We give each man a thorough course of instruction, liberal compensation, personal supervision and every assistance in the field. See Mr. Dooley, between 9-2, 749 Boylston St.

This Is Air Travel

And You Will Travel This Way Some Day

SERVING LUNCHEON ON THE LONDON-TO-PARIS AIRSHIP

Here in America we say "Some day we shall travel by flying machine."

In Europe they now TRAVEL BY FLYING MACHINE.

This country invented the flying machine; an American was the first that ever flew in a machine heavier than air. We have individuals with plenty of initiative, but, unfortunately, in some things our Government seems as sleepy as that of Persia in the old days.

Our railroads, of course, are not interested in building up air competition with themselves—although if they were intelligent they would do that without waiting for someone else to do it.

Therefore, as regards air travel, we are still as backward as Haiti or the Cannibal Islands.

It may interest you, however, to see how you WILL travel when this country wakes up and begins really using flying machines.

There is hope, fortunately, in the good example set by the Postoffice. President Coolidge has encouraged the air mail, and Mr. New, the Postmaster-General, has worked at it most energetically in establishing many flying routes. These will gradually develop into transportation of passengers as well as mail; then, slowly, the American flying period will begin.

See how comfortably flying can be done. This picture from the London "SPHERE" shows the interior of one of the big flying machines that carry passengers, many of them Americans, between London and Paris.

Passengers sit looking down and out upon the earth, in comfortable armchairs facing each other, and good meals are served as they travel far up above the land and above the Channel.

All over Europe these passenger-flying routes are established, and, backward as we are when it comes to Government initiative, we shall eventually have the flying routes in America. And when they do come, we shall have more of them than all the other nations put together.

America's Eye Teeth Cut

Europe Is Making Americans Less "Ignorant" Every Day

It is sometimes hard to say which is the greater affront—an utter insult or an unsolicited and stupid defense.

As our London correspondent has explained, the newly indulged British pastime of blackguarding Uncle Sam got out of hand and had to be halted for business reasons.

Among the halters is the Earl of Denbigh. He asks his countrymen to make allowances for the "lamentable ignorance of millions of Americans regarding European conditions."

He blames on our "Middle West, so absolutely insular and parochial in its ideas," the willingness of this country to take what Britain volunteered to pay.

These naive souls, "essentially non-British," who think that an honest debt should be paid without whimpering, are, he points out, "different in temperament and mentality" from the "great financial and commercial interests in the Eastern States," though he neglects to define the difference.

Possibly he had in mind our international bankers, who are ready to cancel all debts except their own.

We cannot permit the noble lord to get away with his hypothesis.

There was, indeed, a time when Americans, East, West, everywhere, were ignorant of European conditions.

That was notably the fact in 1917 and 1918, when they were pouring their treasure and their young manhood in the greatest flood in history to "save civilization," "make the world safe for democracy," and "win the war to end war," not knowing that their money and their strength were being used to confirm the division of war spoils which their European associates had already secretly made and kept from America's knowledge.

The disillusionment which followed the repudiation by these European nations of practically every promise they had made to the American Government and people; the orgy of huckstering and perfidy at Versailles; the grabs for colonies, mandates and power; the wolfish greeds and hates that the "peace" negotiations uncovered on every hand; the increase in armaments far in excess of pre-war standards—all these contributed swiftly to dispel American ignorance of European conditions.

So we must remind the Earl of Denbigh that his view of the matter is belated.

The ignorance to which he alludes existed generally throughout America eight years ago.

Since then this nation has cut its eye teeth.

PREDICTIONS ABOUT FUTURE OF COAL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ROGER W. BABSON, who usually knows what he is talking about, says there need be little fear of a coal shortage next Winter.

In the first place, says Mr. Babson, the strike was a complete failure. Both sides lost and there need be no fear of another coal strike for at least two years.

So abnormal labor conditions will have nothing to do with either the supply or the price of coal. Its old price will be regulated purely by the old law of supply and demand.

In the second place substitutes are replacing coal as a fuel.

During the recent strike many people changed to other fuels. Oil and electricity were substituted by some. The increase in the use of gas is said to be the most striking phase of the turning to other fuels. It is predicted that many of those who have changed will never again return to a full use of anthracite coal.

Turning to the future, Mr. Babson predicts that gas will be much more generally used in years to come. This will be true both for heating and for industrial purposes.

In the cities of the future, he prophesies, the delivering of coal through the streets will become as obsolete as independent drinking wells.

Homes and factories will use gas and electricity exclusively.

The public utility companies will be the ones who will use anthracite coal. It will be used largely to produce these fuels.

With this situation coke will find a greater place in furnishing heat and power. No smoke and little dirt are two of its attractive features.

Another part of this prophecy concerns itself with teaching economical use of fuel in the schools. The buying and use of different fuels will be included in curriculums.

Aside from the interest in what a man who bases his ideas upon facts has to say about the future of something we are all interested in directly, Mr. Babson's interview is of special interest to men who are planning their coal purchases for next year.

He assures them that absence of labor troubles will insure a constant supply and that the substitution of other fuels means less growth in demand.

From these ideas he deduces his conclusion: "I don't see how any higher prices are possible, and lower prices for coal are more likely."

WITH WHAT MEASURE DO YOU METE OUT JUDGMENT?

Dou you expect too much from your friends, your business associates, your employes?

Because those under your supervision do not measure up to all your demands as employes do you think of them as deficient?

Your demands may be unusually hard to meet in a manner entirely satisfactory to you.

If you were the employed one instead of the employer you might have difficulty in doing well what you expect of those who draw wages from you.

Perhaps you are just as much a failure as a boss as your helpers are as workers in your estimation.

Digest this thought.

You are not perfect, but you expect perfection in others.

Said a mother, "I never scolded Johnnie for soiling the tablecloth that ." "ei not drop something on it myself."

"on't expect too much of our friends and our children.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

We fuss over our clothes and our shoe shines, our hair cuts and make-ups, our jewelry and cars, our homes and clubs. We spend unlimited time and thought and money in "having everything just right so we'll make the best appearance." But we nearly always overlook the one factor in our ensemble which most duly reveals us for what we are.

We overlook our VOICES.

Yet one second's exposure of the human voice will make a million dollars' worth of jewelry, limousines, clothes and clubs look like 20 cents. Or, by the same token, it can make the shabbiest rags seem the garb of a statesman or a saint.

All day long the telephone twinkles at my elbow. Each time I take down the receiver a human being enters my rooms. I cannot see these human beings. I cannot test the texture of their garments nor the thickness of their pocketbooks.

But I know to a certainty the texture and thickness of their characters before they've talked five minutes. And I'm no seventh daughter of a seventh son, born with a caul and possessing the powers of divination. I'm a common mutt and all I do is listen.

Blessedest Sound

The blessedest sound of all is the Brisk, Hopeful Voice. I want to zoom right down the wire and hang garlands all over that Voice. Every time I hear it, it clears up all my static. There may be no very great wisdom behind that voice, no record of success, no heavy bank balance. But that Voice isn't chewing its nails over the fact.

It's wide awake and on the job. It's ready for Lady Luck if she comes along. And if Lady Luck doesn't come, there are still a lot of interesting things to see. You're quite sure that that Voice could fly into rompers.

Also the chances are strong that it gets to work late sometimes, and leaves the bed unmade. But hang it all, who cares? It's a Regular Guy—that Voice. It's friendly, and fair and it doesn't hold a grudge nor nurse a secret sorrow. It's the salt of the earth and whether it comes in a Parisian gown or a basement bargain pickup it has the right of way.

But oh how different is the Limp Voice that so often oozes from my 'phone! I have to reach down into the receiver and yank that voice out before I can hear it. A poor spineless drivel of sound—it's neither mad nor glad. It hasn't gumption enough to be either.

Long ago that Voice stopped expecting anything of itself or the world. Maybe something hurt it badly, but somehow, as you listen, you feel little sympathy over that fact. Instead, you'd like to hand it a few wallops on your own.

You repress that vicious urge and try to help that Voice. You relate your best jokes and your most mellowed philosophy—you advise and exhort it—you argue down its whimpering negation. All of no use. You might as well try to argue with a piece of tripe. The person who owns that Voice wonders why he always had bad luck. You don't wonder. You know.

Bullying Voice

Then there's the bullying Voice. It leaps at you, gnashing its teeth with all its toe nails spread. There's no reason why it should leap or gnash. You've done nothing to that Voice. Nor does its owner feel that you have.

But he thinks that maybe you'll try to do something and he's going to be ready for you if you do. This is the Voice of the Bully. It is always on the offensive. It is also always on the defensive. For the Bully is always a coward at heart.

Behind his roaring approach, Fear and Suspicion cower and cringe. The Voice will always betray its owner though he puts on a front like a Fourth of July parade.

My pet detestation, however, is the Angel Cake Voice—all sweetness and light. They are the All-Is-Well tribe and they inveriably make me feel as if I'd stepped on a wad of gum. At my best, I'm a violent woman, but when one of those Voices blithers blithely over my phone, it takes strong men and table rope to hold me.

Or as a precious relief there's that dear, reliable Voice that reaches out to you like a warm handclasp. Life has done many things to that Voice. It has been parched in deserts of despair and drowned in floods of grief.

But out of it all, there has come tolerance and tenderness and strength. It's all there—there in that Voice that takes your tried frightened spirit and holds it fast in a steady, friendly clasp.

And, of course, there's the Voice we all have met and longed to strangle. It usually emanates from something that looks as if she were made of star dust and tube roses, ou gaze in admiration at the owner of that Voice.

You wonder how anything so exquisite could walk the dingy streets of earth. Suddenly you feel common and coarse. You want to go home and take a bath and maybe get religion. And then—she SPEAKS! ! !

Tricky things, Voices. They certainly spill the works.

CURED

Marvellous Effect of Hayfield and Haymakers Upon a City Boy Who Was Headed the Wrong Way

The 15-year-old boy Judge Thomas P. Riley of the Malden District Court sent out to inspect the Lyman School for Boys at Westboro, a day or two ago, is expected to return to court next Wednesday morning to tell His Honor that one brief visit was enough and that he is determined to be a "square shooter" from now on.

We are told that at Westboro the mischievous one watched other boys at work pitching hay, saw more of them busy in the garden, and observed the "worst offenders" laboring with oxen, on a rock pile.

His police escort says the boy came home "cured," and maybe he did. We can readily understand how a country boy, in his seventeenth Summer, say, would want to duck and run from a hayfield, but what there is about one to frighten a city boy, and bring about HIS reform, is beyond us.

Anyhow, this one is not REALLY a bad boy; not on the record, he isn't. He did get into a marshmallow-cream factory, with other members of his "gang," and a few hours after he had been released on probation, in this same court, he was brought back for taking a melon from a fruit stand. Reprehensible conduct? Certainly. Against the law? Surely. But not to be condemned too sternly by boys of fifty years and more who, if they will only try hard, can remember shirtwaists in the long ago that were stuffed with appropriated apples.

Judge Riley, our guess is, means to give this boy another chance. Perhaps he deserves it. He has just been graduated from grammar school, where he "stood well in his class." His father says he is a "good boy at home," and THAT is SOMETHING, as every parent will agree.

But we DON'T believe he was "cured" by seeing other boys raking hay.

Law That Can't Be Broken

No Automobile Insurance, No 1927 Number Plates—DON'T Worry

Commissioner Monk of the State Department of Insurance warns Massachusetts motorists that the contracts sold by certain automobile service associations are NOT insurance policies, but merely agreements to provide legal and other "services." None of the "service" associations, the Insurance Commissioner says, is or can be licensed to do an INSURANCE business.

The motorists need have no fear of violating the compulsory automobile insurance law, which becomes effective on the first day of January, next, for the very good reason that before he can obtain his 1927 license plates the applicant for registration must comply with the provisions of the new law in one of three ways—an insurance policy, a bond, or the deposit of cash or securities.

Friends of the "compulsory" act say it will reduce the number of automobile accidents in this State by 25 per cent. Its working will be watched with keen interest by the legislators of other States.

There doesn't appear to be a chance that the law can be violated, innocently or otherwise, because there will be no number plates for the car which is not insured.
